“The Inevitability of Rationing Health Care and How to be Fair About It”

February 23, 2012

4:00 p.m.

2008 Richmond Center

Some argue that we can avoid rationing health care. Dr. Caplan will use demographics that prove this view is simply wrong, and will take up practical questions. If we must ration, how ought we do so? And if we do so, who should ration and what principles ought they to follow?

Art Caplan’s visit is co-sponsored by the University Center for the Humanities, the Medical Humanities Workgroup, the School of Medicine, the College of Health and Human Services, the College of Fine Arts, and the Center for Ethics in Society.
