Qualifications Awarded or Validated by Universities

ADMISSION TO DEGREE COURSES

Higher Education Institutions (HEIs)

Most institutions have a general requirement for admission to a degree course; special requirements may be in force for particular courses. Requirements are usually expressed in terms of subjects passed at GCE A level and the Higher Grade of the SCE. The universities have a clearing house to handle applications for university courses – UCAS: www.ucas.com.

All intending students who live in the UK may obtain information on application procedures from their schools or colleges, or directly from UCAS. The scheme covers all universities and all medical schools. UCAS also has specialist services: the UCAS Teacher Training www.ucas.com/ucas-teacher-training, the UK Postgraduate Application and Statistical Service (UKPASS – www.ukpass.ac.uk) and the Conservatoires UK Admissions Service (CUKAS – www.cukas.ac.uk). HEIs have specific schemes to encourage access and participation in higher education. These can include partnerships with further education colleges that run access to higher education courses.

The Open University

For admission to most first-degree courses, no formal educational qualifications are necessary. However, students who have successfully completed one or more years of full-time study at the higher education level (or its equivalent in part-time study) may be eligible for exemption from some credit requirements of the BA degree. The Open University handles its own admissions.

Business schools

The degrees awarded by the various university business schools are postgraduate and therefore normally require an Honours degree as part of their entrance qualification.

AWARDS

The awards made by the universities may be separated into the following categories: first degrees;

higher degrees; honorary degrees; first diplomas and certificates; higher diplomas and certificates.

First degrees

Nomenclature

Various names are given to first degrees at British universities. At most universities the first degree in Arts is the BA (Bachelor of Arts) and the first degree in Science is the BSc (Bachelor of Science), but at the universities of Oxford and Cambridge and at several new universities, the BA is the first degree gained by students in both arts and science. In Scotland the first arts degree at three of the four old universities is Master of Arts (MA). There are numerous variations on the bachelor theme, eg BSc (Econ) (Bachelor of Science in Economics), BCom (Bachelor of Commerce), BSocSc (Bachelor of Social Science), BEng (Bachelor of Engineering) and BTech (Bachelor of Technology). The first award in medicine is the joint degrees of MB, ChB (Bachelor of Medicine, Bachelor of Surgery), the designatory letters of which vary from university to university.

Structure of courses

First-degree courses vary considerably in structure, not only between one university and another but also between faculties in a single university. The degree examination is usually in two sections, Part I coming after one or two years of the course and Part II,

'finals', at the end of the course. The first-degree system at some Scottish universities differs substantially from that in English and Welsh universities (see below).

Bachelor degrees

These degrees, sometimes known as 'ordinary' or 'first' degrees, lead to qualifications such as Bachelor of Arts (BA), Bachelor of Science (BSc) or Bachelor of Medicine (MB). Each university decides the form and content of its own degree examinations. These vary from university to university.

The first-degree structure in all British universities is based on the honours degree. Successful candidates in honours degree examinations are placed in different classes according to their performance, first class being the highest. The other classes given vary from university to university, but the classification most often used is: Class I; Class II (Division 1); Class II (Division 2); Class III. Most graduates who go on to higher academic qualifications and those entering, for example, the higher grades in the Civil Service or research, normally have a good class honours degree.

You can find out more about recognized UK degrees at the Government website: www.gov.uk/recognised-uk-degrees.

Number of subjects studied

Excluding medicine and dentistry, the broad subject areas are Arts (or Humanities), Social Science, Pure Science and Applied Science. Most students study one main subject selected from one of these areas. It is possible to distinguish many types of degree course according to the number of subjects studied; these types are a variation on three main categories:

1. Honours course in one to three subjects with or without examinable subsidiary subjects.
2. Pass or ordinary courses in one to three subjects with or without examinable subsidiary subjects.
3. Common studies for pass and Honours in one to three subjects, with or without examinable subsidiary subjects.

Length of degree course

First-degree courses may be preceded by a preliminary year, from which students with the appropriate entry qualifications may be exempted. At most universities Honours and pass courses in arts, social science, pure and applied science last three or four years, but courses in architecture, dentistry and veterinary medicine usually last five years, and complete qualifying courses in medicine up to six years. Courses in fine arts and pharmacy may last four years; four-year courses exist mainly in double Honours schools, especially when they involve foreign languages and a period of study abroad, and in the technological universities where some courses include a period of integrated industrial training (sandwich courses).

The Scottish first degree

Undergraduate Honours degrees in Scotland are usually four years in duration and are structured to ensure a great deal of flexibility during the first two years of study. Most students only confirm their major in the final two years of study, which usually allows the student to choose a variety of subjects. This is different from the English system of undergraduate education, which is normally three years in duration and is more specialized from the beginning. After three years study students can gain a Bachelor or Ordinary degree or obtain the Honours degree by studying for a further year.

The Medicine and Veterinary Medicine degrees and MA Fine Art degree all take five years. In several science and engineering subjects there are opportunities to study for a five-year MChem, MChemPhys, MEng or MPhys degree. These degrees entail in-depth study, often with a research focus, but are undergraduate degrees and not equivalent to post-graduate Master's.

Aegrotat degrees

Candidates who have followed a course for a degree but have been prevented from taking the examinations by illness may be awarded a degree certificate indicating that they were likely to have obtained the degree had they taken the examinations.

Higher degrees

These comprise:

- some Bachelor's degrees: BPhil, BLitt, etc;
- Master's degrees: MA, MSc, etc;
- Doctor of Philosophy: PhD or DPhil;
- Higher Doctorates: DLitt, DSc, etc.

At Oxford and Cambridge the degree of MA is conferred on any BA of the university without any further course of study or examination after a specified number of years and on payment of a fee.

Candidates for a Master's degree at other universities (and at some for the degrees of BPhil, BLitt and BD, which are of equivalent standing) are normally required to have a first degree, although it need not have been obtained in the same university. Master's degrees are taken after one or two years' full-time study. The PhD requires at least two or more – usually three – years of full-time study.

In some universities and faculties students may be selected for a PhD course after an initial year's study or research common to both a PhD and a Master's degree. Candidates for a Master's degree are required either to prepare a thesis for presentation to examiners, who may afterwards question candidates on it orally, or to take written examination papers; they may be required to do both. All PhD students present a thesis; some may be required to take an examination paper as well. MPhil, MSc and similar degrees are usually awarded at the end of a one- or two-year course in a specific topic on the results of a written examination or a thesis. Higher doctorates are designated on a faculty basis, eg DLitt (Doctor of Letters) and DSc (Doctor of Science). Candidates are usually required to have at least a Master's degree of the awarding university. Senior doctorates are conferred on more mature and established people, usually on the basis of published contributions to knowledge.

Foundation degrees

Foundation degrees were established to give people the intermediate technical and professional skills that are in demand from employers and to provide more flexible and accessible ways of studying. Increasing opportunities for employment and career advancement are priorities; Foundation degree content and assessment are therefore designed in consultation with employers. Additional progression routes include links with associated professional qualifications and/or direct entry to the final year of a relevant Honours-level degree. Provision is available across a range of FE colleges and a number of HEIs.

Honorary degrees

Most universities confer honorary degrees on people of distinction in academic and public life, and on others who have rendered service to the university or to the local community. Normally degrees awarded are at least Foundation level.

Diplomas and certificates of higher education

Courses for first diplomas and certificates are relatively simple in structure; they usually reach a level lower than that required for the award of a degree. There is usually a carefully defined course in a specialized or vocational subject, lasting one or two years, followed by all candidates. Most courses are full time.

Postgraduate diplomas and certificates

Diplomas (eg in public health, social administration, medicine and technology) are awarded either on a full-time or, less often, part-time basis according to the subject and the university. Candidates must usually be graduates or hold equivalent qualifications. Diplomas are awarded after formal courses of instruction and success in written examinations. A Certificate or Diploma in Education is awarded to graduates training to become teachers after one year's full-time study and teaching practice.

Postgraduate courses

A number of courses for graduates or people with equivalent qualifications are offered in FE establishments. They include short specialist courses in management and business studies and secretarial courses for graduates.

Business schools

A Master of Business Administration (MBA) is an internationally recognized postgraduate qualification intended to prepare individuals for middle to senior general managerial positions. Most programmes contain as their core a number of subjects considered essential for understanding the operations of any enterprise. These are: accounting and finance, operations management, business policy, economics, human resource management, marketing, information systems and strategic planning.

Unlike any other Master's programme, the MBA is not only postgraduate, it is also strongly post-experience. A minimum of three years' (often more) work experience at an appropriate level of responsibility is generally expected of applicants. The requirement for a first degree (or equivalent) is sometimes waived for those holding an impressive track record of over five years at managerial level. Approximately one-third of MBA students have an engineering or information technology background. Many undertake the qualification to facilitate change from technical or specialist positions to more general ones.

The MBA was conceived originally in the United States at the beginning of the 20th century. Introduced in the United Kingdom in the late 1960s, it did not grow in popularity until the late 1980s. The popularity of this degree in the United Kingdom can be seen in the rapid expansion in the number of providers.

The Association of MBAs (AMBA) operates a system of accreditation. The accreditation process, which is internationally recognized for all MBA, DBA and Master's in Business and Management (MBM) programmes, measures individual MBA programmes against specific accreditation criteria.

Further information, including a list of accredited MBA programmes, can be obtained from the Association of MBAs, 25 Hosier Lane, London EC1A 9LQ; Tel: 020 7246 2686; e-mail: info@mba-world.com; website: www.mba-world.com.

The Association of Business Schools (ABS)

3rd Floor, 40 Queen Street, London, EC4R 1DD; Tel: 020 7236 7678; website: www.associationofbusiness-schools.org

The ABS is the representative body for management and business education and all the United Kingdom's leading business schools. The ABS works broadly in three main areas: policy development, promotion and representation, and training and development. The ABS is able to provide general information about the wide range of courses and programmes provided by the United Kingdom's business schools.

First awards

- BA, BEd, BEng, LLB, BSc: with 1st Class, 2nd Class (Divisions 1 and 2), 3rd Class Honours or Pass; or unclassified with or without Distinction.
- MEng: awarded to students who successfully complete a course of study that is longer and more demanding than the BEng first degree course in engineering.
- GMus (Graduate Diploma in Music): awarded to those students who complete three years' approved full-time study (or equivalent) in music and who demonstrate competence in musical performance.

- DipHE (Diploma of Higher Education): equivalent in standard and often similar in content to the first two years of an Honours degree course.
- Certificates of Higher Education: equivalent to the first year of an Honours degree course.

Higher awards

- MA, MBA, MEd, MSc: for successful completion of an approved postgraduate course of study of 48 weeks' duration (or the part-time equivalent).
- MPhil, PhD: for successful completion of approved programmes of supervised research.
- DSc, DLitt, DTech: for original and important contributions to knowledge and/or its applications.
- Postgraduate Diploma: awarded for the successful completion of an approved postgraduate course of study of 25 weeks' duration (or the part-time equivalent).
- Postgraduate Certificate: awarded for the successful completion of postgraduate/post-experience courses of 15 weeks' duration (or the part-time equivalent).
- Postgraduate Certificate in Education (PGCE): awarded on completion of a one-year full-time course; candidates must be British graduates or hold another recognized qualification.
- Diploma in Professional Studies: available in the fields of education and nursing, health visiting, midwifery and sports coaching. Students normally hold an initial professional qualification. A minimum of two years' experience is normally expected.

agriculture resource management, animal behaviour/management, applied animal science, applied bioscience, art, design & fashion, business & management, coaching, countryside management (game-keeping/fisheries management) event management, environmental studies, equine business management/studies/science/therapy & rehabilitation/sports management/sports coaching, floristry design, garden design & horticulture, policing & criminology/forensic investigation, public services, sport/ & adventure management, teacher training, tourism & hospitality management; BA(Hons), BSc(Hons), FDA, MSc, PGCE

illustration & concept art, live events production, packaging design and branding, creative music technology, dance practice, fashion advertising, fashion & textiles, fine art and craft, graphic design, illustration and concept art, moving image production, business management, education, early childhood development & learning in practice, working with children and young people, applied social science, criminal justice, early childhood studies, English, PE, sport, exercise & health sciences, sport, fitness & exercise science, working with children & young people, mechanical & production engineering, integrated technology, creative industries: practice, business & innovation, various HND engineering and other courses offered; BA(Hons), BSc, BSc(Hons), FD, HND, MA, MSc, PGCE, PGCert/Dip, MBA

www3.imperial.ac.uk

Faculty of Engineering;
www3.engineering.imperial.ac.uk

Aeronautics: composites, adv computational methods for aeronautics, advanced aeronautical engineering

Bioengineering: bioengineering, biomedical engineering, biomedical device design & entrepreneurship, biomechanics, medical physics, medical design

Chemical Engineering: chemical engineering/ with nuclear engineering, adv chemical engineering with biotechnology/process systems engineering/structured product

Civil & Environmental Engineering: civil/structural engineering, structural steel design, concrete structures, civil & environmental engineering, earthquake engineering, engineering geology, environmental engineering, general structural engineering, geotechnics, hydrology, soil mechanics & engineering geology, transport

Computing: adv/computing, artificial intelligence, computational mathematics, computer science, games vision & interactivity, software engineering, mathematics & computer science – pure mathematics & computational logic/computational statistics, mathematical logic, secure software systems, software engineering, visual information programs, robotics & image-guided intervention

Earth Science & Engineering: geology, geophysics, environmental/petroleum geoscience/geophysics, materials & energy finance, petroleum engineering/geophysics, remote sensing

Electrical & Electronic Engineering: electronic & electrical engineering, analogue & digital integrated circuit design, information engineering, communications & signal processing, control systems

Materials: adv/material science & engineering/management, aerospace materials, biomaterials & tissue engineering, biomedical engineering & biomaterials, materials & nuclear engineering, advanced materials, composites, nuclear engineering

Mechanical Engineering: adv/mechanical engineering, nuclear engineering, innovation design

engineering, global engineering design; BEng, MA, MEng, MSc, MSci, PhD, MRes

Faculty of Medicine;
www1.medicine.imperial.ac.uk

medicine, allergy, biomedical research/science, cancer biology, cardiorespiratory nursing, clinical research design & management, epidemiology, experimental neuroscience, human molecular genetics, human nutrition, immunology, infection management for pharmacists, medical robotics & image-guided intervention, medical ultrasound, molecular biology & pathology of viruses, molecular medicine, neuroscience, paediatrics & child health, preventative cardiology, public health, quality & safety in health-care, reproductive biology, surgery, surgery education; BSc, CAS, MB BS, MEd, MPH, MRes, MSc, MSci, PhD

Imperial College Business School;
www3.imperial.ac.uk/business-school

accounting, actuarial finance, adv corporate finance, brand management, data science & management, economics & strategy for business, finance, global business, innovation management, innovation, investment & wealth management, entrepreneurship & management, international health management, management, managerial economics, marketing/management, materials & energy finance, mergers & acquisition, people & organisational behaviour, private equity finance, project management, risk management and financial engineering, social media, strategic marketing; BSc, MBA, MSc, PhD

Faculty of Natural Sciences;
