

George joined the society in the mid-1950s and was elected a Fellow in 1984. He was actively involved in STLE and local sections, particularly working with the Philadelphia Section. In 2001, he became the first recipient of STLE's Vic Joll Award, given annually to the society's most outstanding section member.

George served as chairman of STLE's

Annual Meeting Program Committee in 1969 and 1976. He also was chairman of the society's Food, Drug and Cosmetic and Petroleum and Chemical Industry Councils and a member of the Rules Committee.

George is survived by his son, George Arbocus, Jr., and daughter, Cindy, along with six grandchildren and four great-grandchildren.

STLE ANNOUNCES HQ STAFF CHANGES

STLE has promoted two current staff members in the society's headquarters office in suburban Chicago with new titles and expanded duties, as of Aug. 1.

Myrna Scott-Perez, manager of information technology, has been named director of operations. In addition to managing the organization's computer systems, database, Website and technical report functions, she also will be involved in finance and accounting, salary and benefits administration and building and office infrastructure design. Myrna joined the STLE staff in 1999.

Tom Heidrich, education and membership specialist, has been named education and membership manager. Tom will be directing the development and presentation of STLE's growing list of signature education products such as the STLE University program and education courses offered at the STLE annual meeting. In addition, he'll also be a key part of membership recruiting and retention in his role as staff liaison to the STLE Membership Development Committee.

Tom, who joined the STLE staff in June 2013, replaces Kara Sniegowski, who left STLE in July after four years.
