ABSTRACT

This document contains Idaho's marketing education (ME) core curriculum. Presented first are a list of 22 ME strategies that are aligned with the Idaho State Division of Vocational-Technical Education's strategic plan and a chart detailing the career pathways of ME in Idaho (arts and communication, business and management, health services, human resources, industrial and engineering, and natural resources). Discussed next are the nature/scope of and occupational areas of ME, job outlook for ME occupations, skills/knowledge learned in ME, and role of ME in improving marketing in Idaho. The remainder of the document is a list of 327 competencies in the following categories: role of marketing in the economic system; basic marketing elements; basic marketing math; sales transaction and store operation; critical elements of advertising; basic elements of display and sales promotional activities; selling techniques; interpersonal skills; career opportunities and appropriate job-seeking skills; communication skills, merchandising; technology; management and supervision; accounting; business law; and entrepreneurship. Within each category skills are grouped by the following levels: career sustaining; specialist; supervisory; and entrepreneurial. Appended are lists of 21 ME occupations and the education and business representatives involved in developing the core curriculum. (MN)

Marketing Education Strategies in Alignment with the Idaho State Division Vocational-Technical Education Strategic Plan

State Division Objective 1-3: Participate actively in coordinating the development and implementation of new vocational-technical models of education.

Marketing Education Strategy:

1. Develop and implement alternative models for delivering marketing education instruction.

State Division Objective 1-4: Develop and implement a public information plan to explain the role of and worth of vocational-technical information.

Marketing Education Strategy:

1. Inform students, parents, school personnel, and community members of the benefits of participation in a marketing education program through widespread distribution of the marketing education curriculum guide.

State Division Objective 2-1: Develop and improve vocational-technical education using current industry standards and/or employer expectations.

Marketing Education Strategies:

1. Integrate skills standards established for the retail industry by the National Retail Federation into the marketing education curriculum.
2. Utilize instructional activities that develop workplace competencies and foundation skills identified by the U.S. Department of Labor.
3. Determine regional employer expectations from members of local and state advisory boards.
4. Revise the marketing education curriculum every five years to reflect current industry practices and standards.

State Division Objective 2-3: Increase and improve the integration of vocational-technical competencies and applied academic concepts.

Marketing Education Strategies:

1. Reinforce and strengthen students' basic academic skills throughout all marketing education concepts.
2. Provide instruction in economics, mathematics, oral and written communications, decision making, and other areas in an applied, contextual approach.

State Division Objective 2-4: Require comprehensive employability skills development for students as an integral part of instruction.

Marketing Education Strategies:

1. Provide employability skills instruction to all secondary marketing education students.
2. Utilize cooperative education and other workbased learning experiences to complement and reinforce classroom instruction.

State Division Objective 2-9: Develop expertise throughout the system that provides quality vocational-technical education through telecommunications and other emerging technologies.

Marketing Education Strategies:

1. Provide training in the use of telecommunications and other technologies through preservice and inservice to marketing educators.
2. Include e-mail addresses in the Idaho marketing education directory and encourage the use of e-mail for communications when available.
3. Integrate uses of telecommunications and other technologies into the marketing education curriculum as access is established.

State Division Objective 4-1: Increase vocational-technical education opportunities at the secondary and postsecondary levels.

Marketing Education Strategy:

1. Increase the number of marketing education programs at the secondary and postsecondary levels.

State Division Objective 4-2: Increase the impact of the tech-prep initiative.

Marketing Education Strategies:

1. Develop and refine articulation agreements between secondary and postsecondary marketing education programs.
2. Coordinate the marketing education curriculum to provide a seamless transition for individuals articulating from secondary to postsecondary marketing education programs.

State Division Objective 5-1: Promote the development of private-public partnerships to increase involvement of business and industry in identifying and developing workbased learning opportunities.

Marketing Education Strategies:

1. Increase the number and types of training stations utilized in cooperative education and other workbased learning programs.
2. Increase the number of school-based enterprises as a means of providing workbased learning opportunities for students.

State Division Objective 6-1: Implement guidance programs in all schools and vocational-technical colleges consistent with the K-12/ adult guidance models.

Marketing Education Strategy:

1. Provide guidance counselors and students with current information on careers in the marketing education field.

State Division Objective 6-2: Provide State Division counselors and teachers with the training, curriculum and information to assist students to: identify their strengths and motivations; explore careers uniquely suited to their strengths and motivations; identify educational programs and formulate a plan leading to their career goals; and develop skills for locating, maintaining, and advancing in a job.

Marketing Education Strategies:

1. Promote back-to-industry experiences for marketing education instructors.
2. Train all preservice marketing teachers on the State Division Comprehensive Guidance Model.
3. Provide training on the comprehensive guidance model as an inservice for marketing educators.

Business and Management Career Pathway

The Business and Management career pathway includes programs related to the business environment. These may include entrepreneurship, sales, marketing, hospitality and tourism, computer information systems, finance, accounting, personnel, economics, and management.

Marketing Education programs provide students with the opportunity to develop competencies that will be useful in many of the other career pathways identified in Idaho. The matrix below shows which marketing classes will benefit students as they pursue a career in another of Idaho's career paths.

Idaho Marketing Education - General Information

What Is Marketing?

Marketing is the process of determining consumer needs and then directing products and services to meet those needs. The functions of marketing include financing, risk management, selling, promotion, pricing, purchasing, marketing information, management, product service planning, and distribution.

What Is Marketing Education (ME)?

Marketing Education is the vocational instruction program designed to prepare motivated people for marketing careers. Idaho's goals for Marketing Education are to:

- Prepare people for work in marketing occupations.
- Prepare people for further education.
- Increase the efficiency of the Idaho marketing system.

Marketing Education is a program within the Business and Management career pathway. Introductory courses provide exploratory experiences for students interested in careers in a business environment. These may include entrepreneurship, sales, marketing, hospitality and tourism, computer information systems, finance, accounting, personnel, economics, and management.

How Are Marketing Education Occupational Areas Classified?

Marketing Education provides training for skills and competencies needed in the following occupational areas:

- Advertising Marketing
- Apparel and Accessories Marketing
- Business and Personal Services Marketing
- Entrepreneurship
- Financial Services Marketing
- Food Marketing
- General Marketing
- Home and Office Products Marketing
- Hospitality and Tourism Marketing
- Insurance Marketing
- International Marketing
- Retailing Marketing
- Transportation Marketing
- Vehicles and Petroleum Marketing
- Marketing and Distribution, Other

See Appendix A for a listing of marketing-related occupations available in Idaho and throughout the United States.

What Is the Job Outlook for Marketing Education Occupations?

The U.S. Department of Labor Bureau of Statistics predicts that most positions in the field of marketing education will increase at least as fast as the average for all occupations, and the demand for some positions will be above average through 2005. One contributing factor to this strong job market is the increased need for marketing, promotional, and public relations efforts due to increasing competition in domestic and global products and services.

For What Employment Levels Does Marketing Education Prepare Students?

- An entry level curriculum provides instruction that will prepare students for jobs involving standard or routine procedures with limited need for exercising decision-making skills. Required competencies are related to sales-supporting tasks, basic skills, and fundamental employability skills.
- A career sustaining level curriculum provides instruction that will prepare students for jobs involving more complex duties than at the entry level. These jobs require a comprehensive knowledge of products or services marketed and the marketing practices and techniques associated with the industry. Individuals at this level perform multiple tasks and can accept responsibility and demonstrate decision-making skills.
- A specialization level curriculum provides instruction that will prepare students for jobs involving the performance of a highly specialized activity requiring extensive technical knowledge and experience in a specific marketing function, product area, or service field.
- A supervisory level curriculum provides instruction that will prepare students for jobs that require the ability to coordinate business activities, supervise other employees, and make decisions within management guidelines.
- An entrepreneurial level curriculum provides instruction that will prepare students for managing or owning a business engaged primarily in the marketing of a product or service.
- Marketing Education at the secondary and post-secondary levels prepares students for positions that require more than entry-level skills. All secondary marketing education programs in Idaho prepare students for positions at the career-sustaining level; some programs may also provide instruction for selected competencies within the specialist level.
- Post-secondary programs prepare individuals for careers at the career sustaining, specialist, supervisory, and entrepreneurial levels. Established competencies and curriculum at each career level allow a seamless transition for individuals who complete a secondary program and who may wish to enroll at an Idaho post-secondary vocational technical school and prepare themselves for higher employment levels.

What Instructional Areas Are Included in the Marketing Education Curriculum?

- Advertising
- Career Development
- Communications
- Display
- Economics
- Entrepreneurship
- Human Relations
- Job Seeking
- Management Supervision
- Marketing
- Mathematics and Computers
- Merchandising
- Operations
- Product and Service Technology
- Selling

What Types of Skills and Knowledge Are Learned?

The marketing education curriculum emphasizes skills and knowledge that are necessary for high job performance in all marketing education occupations. Basic and advanced academic skills and higher order workplace competencies identified in studies by the U.S. Department of Labor and the National Retail Federation serve as a foundation for marketing education instruction.

These skills and competencies are incorporated into challenging and interesting instruction in the following areas: product analysis, selling merchandise and services, cashiering, supervising employees, time and money management, stock and inventory control, selecting and pricing merchandise, job interviewing, resume writing, basic communication, and computational skills. The use of advanced technologies in the marketplace is integrated throughout the program of study.

Students completing a Marketing Education program in Idaho will have a broad understanding of marketing in a global environment. They will understand the interdependence of all marketing tools as they relate to the total marketing effort. This is accomplished through the study of marketing as it applies to both a product-oriented and service-oriented organization.

Is There More to Marketing Education than Classroom Instruction?

Classroom instruction is one important aspect of marketing education. Equally important are training experiences and participation in the marketing education student organization, DECA or Delta Epsilon Chi.

Students in Marketing Education receive marketing training in either a co-op or a project (laboratory) method of instruction. Under the co-op method of training, the student combines classroom instruction with on-the-job training in a chosen career area. Students receive academic credit and pay from their employer for the supervised work experience. Under the project (laboratory) plan of instruction, the student combines classroom instruction with supervised laboratory activities designed to help the student achieve his or her career goal. The laboratory experience may include business simulations or the operation of a school store.

Participation in DECA, the secondary division, or Delta Epsilon Chi, the postsecondary division, provides students with the opportunity to become involved in many exciting activities related to their marketing curriculum. Involvement offers students leadership training and a chance to compete in local, state, and national events in specific career areas—all designed to stimulate and motivate classroom interest and vocational competence. Through DECA and Delta Epsilon Chi, students also have the opportunity to participate in social functions, meet many business leaders in the community, and apply for scholarships and loans which may be used to further their education for marketing careers.

How Does Marketing Education Improve Marketing in Idaho?

Employers can hire a Marketing Education trainee or graduate knowing that this individual has received relevant education for the position.

Adults already in the work force can receive continuing instruction which supplements their present jobs and leads to improved performance and advancement.

All Idaho citizens interested in marketing—including people with disabilities, minorities, and other special populations—are assisted in their pursuit of a meaningful career in the marketing field.

Idaho Marketing Education Core Curriculum

Marketing Education in Idaho is a vocational education program designed to prepare motivated people for marketing careers. Marketing Education offers instruction at the secondary, post-secondary, and adult levels for those individuals working in or seeking employment in marketing occupations not requiring a four-year degree.

Students completing a Marketing Education program at the Career Sustaining level in Idaho will be prepared for jobs involving more complex duties than the entry level. In addition to competencies in the basic skills, they will have a greater commitment to and knowledge of a particular industry, be able to accept responsibility, and demonstrate decision-making skills.

Students completing a Marketing Education program at the Specialist level in Idaho will possess all the competencies of the Career Sustaining level and possess a mastery of technical skills in marketing functions.

Those individuals completing a Marketing Education program at the Supervisory level will possess all competencies at the Career Sustaining and Specialist levels, as well as be prepared to enter positions which require the ability to coordinate business functions, supervise other employees, and make decisions within management guidelines.

Students completing the Entrepreneurial level will possess the competencies of the Career Sustaining and Specialist levels and will be prepared to manage or own a business engaged primarily in the marketing of a product or service.
