ABSTRACT

This state curriculum guide was developed to reaffirm the importance of world history in the Louisiana social studies curriculum. It contains statements of the Louisiana social studies goals, program scopes and sequences, a list of 14 generalizations and related concepts, and a master course content outline. Seven study units are presented that address: (1) prehistory; (2) the ancient world; (3) the middle ages; (4) the early modern age; (5) the later modern age; (6) the inter-war period and World War II; and (7) the nuclear age. Each unit is divided into specific sections that contain: (1) generalization, concept, and objective statements; (2) a course outline; and (3) suggested learning activities. Appendices include: (1) selected world history computer activities; (2) world history terms; (3) lists of geographical locations; (4) an overview of major periods and trends in world art and music; (5) 136 references; (6) a sample unit; (7) suggestions and references for evaluation techniques; (8) foreign diplomatic and consular offices in the United States; (9) K-12 social studies skills' charts; and (10) an index organized by time periods, geographical or cultural areas, topics, and page number. FOREWORD

The Board of Elementary and Secondary Education has mandated that a unit of World History, Western Civilization, or World Geography be required for graduation from Louisiana schools beginning with the freshmen class entering high school in the 1984-85 school year. The decision to increase the number of units in social studies needed for graduation is a reflection of the Board's and the public's interest in improving the academic preparation of secondary students. The historical knowledge acquired and the skills developed through the study of World History will help students to understand more completely the complex, interdependent world in which we all must live and work.

This guide is intended as a curricular resource for those teachers who must provide instruction to students who select World History as the third required unit of social studies. Its development represents the combined efforts of Department of Education staff and outstanding World History teachers in every geographic region in the State.

The Louisiana Department of Education is pleased to have produced this World History Guide as part of its continuing effort to improve the quality of education in Louisiana's schools. I would like to thank all of the teachers throughout the state who cooperated in this significant project to upgrade social studies education.

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

This publication represents the cooperative efforts of personnel in the Bureaus of Secondary Education and Curriculum, Inservice, and Staff Development within the Office of Academic Programs. Special recognition goes to Dr. William Miller, Section Chief, Social Studies, who served as chairperson in the development of the guide. Special commendation goes to members of the writing and revision committees and the pilot teachers throughout the State who worked diligently to make this publication a reality. In addition, special appreciation is given to Mrs. Gaynelle Faler, Staff member, Bureau of Curriculum, Inservice, and Staff Development, for her assistance in the development of this document.

LOUISIANA SOCIAL STUDIES CURRICULAR GOALS

- I. Develops an understanding of the relationships between human beings and their social and physical environments in the past and present; develops an understanding of the origins, interrelationships, and efforts of beliefs, values, and behavior patterns; and applies, through the use of computers and computer technology, this knowledge of new situations and data by:
 - A. Acquiring knowledge about social organizations.
 - B. Acquiring knowledge about the relationships between human beings and social environments, understanding some of the effects of these relationships, and making value judgments about the consequences of these relationships.
 - C. Acquiring knowledge about the relationships between human beings and the physical environment, explaining some of the effects of these relationships, and making value judgments about the consequences of these relationships.
 - D. Acquiring knowledge about decision-making processes.
 - E. Acquiring knowledge about conflict and the impact it has on individual and group relationships and making value judgments about these relationships.
 - F. Expressing awareness of some of the beliefs and values expressed by people and recognizing that the times and places in which people live influence their beliefs, values, and behaviors.
 - G. Demonstrating knowledge of ways beliefs and values are transmitted in various cultures.
 - H. Acquiring knowledge about some of the influences, beliefs, values, and relationships between people.
- II. Develops the competencies to acquire, organize, evaluate, and report information using various techniques, including computers and computer technologies, for the purpose of solving problems and clarify issues by:
 - A. Identifying the central problem in a situation and identifying the major issue in a dispute.
 - B. Applying divergent thinking in formulating hypotheses and generalizations capable of being tested.
 - C. Identifying and locating sources of information and evaluating the reliability and relevance of these sources.

- D. Demonstrating ability to use reliable sources of information.
- E. Organizing, analyzing, interpreting, and synthesizing information obtained from various sources.
- F. Using summarized information to test hypotheses, draw conclusions, offer solutions to problems, clarify issues, or make predictions.
- G. Validating outcomes of investigation.
- H. Appraising judgments and values that are involved in the choice of a course of action.

III. The programs encourage the examination of beliefs and values, recognizes the relationship between one's own value structure and own behavior, develops human relations skills and attitudes that enable one to act in the interest of self and others. Fosters an appreciation of the unique nature and value of people even in a technological, computer-oriented age; and contributes to the development of a positive self-concept.

- A. Expressing awareness of the characteristics that give one identify.
- B. Expressing awareness of one's goals (aspirations), the goals of the group with which one identifies, and correlating those goals.
- C. Expressing awareness of the relative strengths of oneself and the groups with which one identifies; recognizing the social barriers to full development that may exist; suggesting ways of maximizing one's effectiveness.
- D. Examining one's own beliefs and values and the relationships between these and behavior.
- E. Developing the human relations skills and attitudes necessary to communicate with others.
- F. Expressing awareness of the physical, intellectual, and social conditions of human beings, and suggesting ways these can be improved.
- G. Demonstrating a commitment to individual and group rights and acting in support of equal opportunities.
- H. Demonstrating effective involvement in social interaction.
- I. Developing a positive feeling about oneself.

LOUISIANA SOCIAL STUDIES PROGRAM

Scope and Sequence

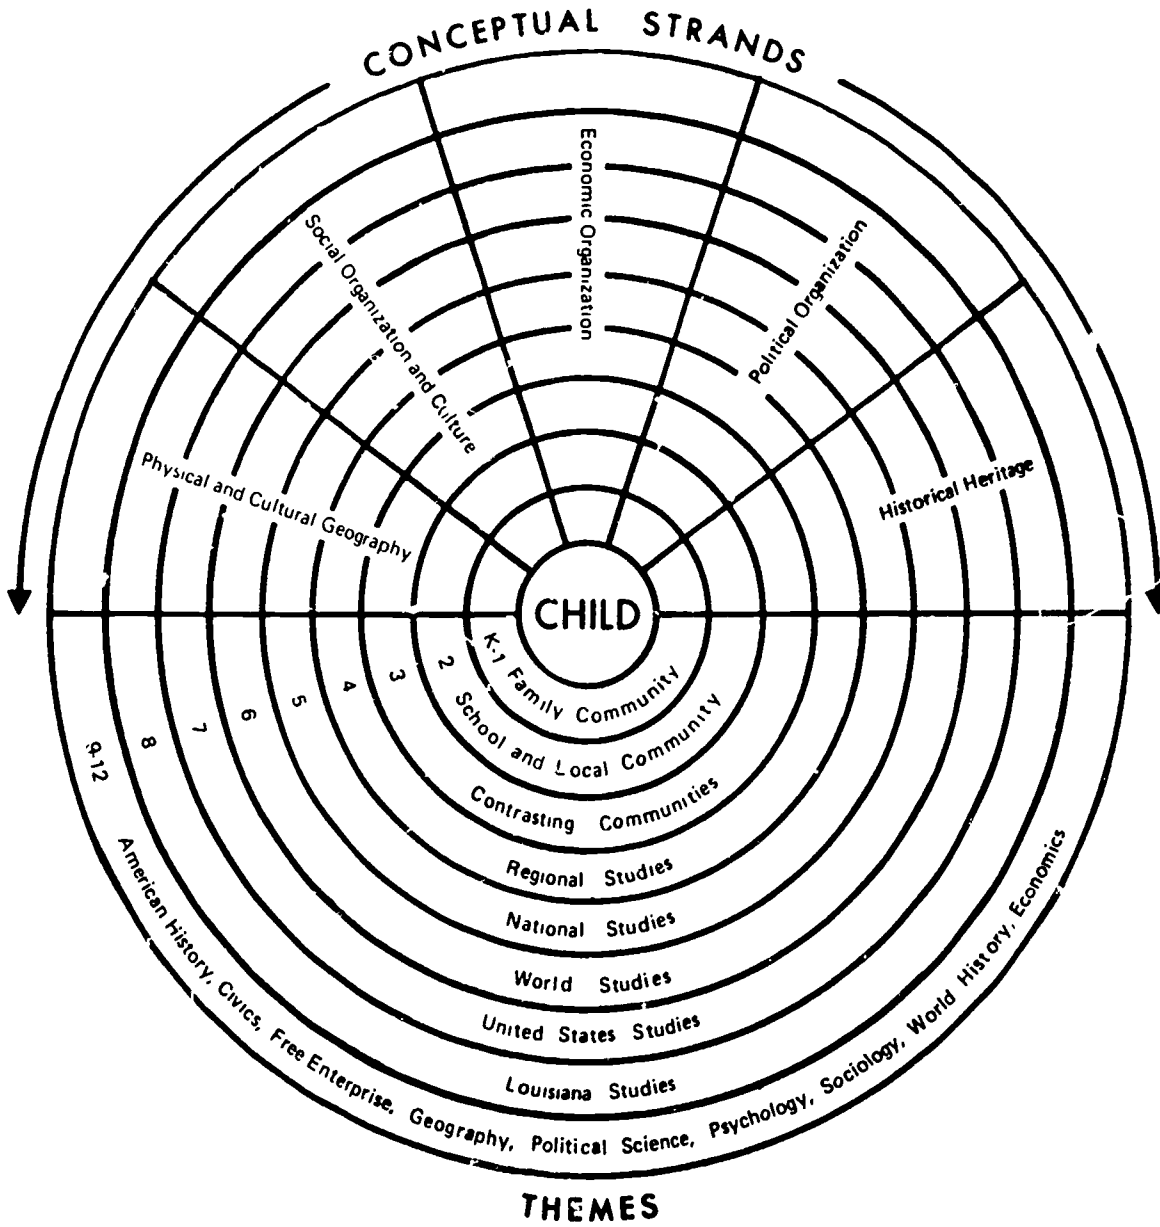

The schematic diagram, "Scope and Sequence for Louisiana Social Studies," graphically represents major features of the social studies education program design. It shows the child as the center and dominant interest of the program. At the top of the chart are the Conceptual Strands encompassing Economic Organization, Historical Heritage, Political Organization, Political and Cultural Geography, and Social Organization and Culture. These strands indicate selection principles to be used in drawing upon the disciplines of anthropology, economics, history, political science, and sociology for course content. The design of the elementary program, then, is shown to be multidisciplinary. The central concepts recurrently treated throughout the program are identified in the "Conceptual Strands Chart" that follows the Scope and Sequence Chart.

Sequencing is based upon the spiral pattern of introducing concepts and skills and then treating them at increasing levels of complexity from grade level to grade level. The Themes shown in the diagram of the chart are used in selecting and sequencing course content. Through grade six there is a modified expanding horizon pattern beginning with that which is familiar and near to the child--the Family Community. The program then sequentially proceeds outward through School and Local Community, Contrasting Communities, Regional Studies, National Studies, and World Studies. The middle school grades reverse this pattern. World Studies in the sixth grade is followed by American Studies and moves homeward again with the Louisiana Studies course. The United States Studies and Louisiana Studies courses are designed as broad cultural studies to provide the scope of experiences appropriate to the age group. These courses are also designed for articulation with other aspects of the middle school curriculum and the senior high separate subject design. The required high school courses for which minimum standards and curriculum guides are being developed are Civics, Free Enterprise, and American History.

Another major component of the program's scope and sequence is represented by the accompanying skills charts. One of these skills that are shared with other subjects, and the other shows those that are major responsibilities of the social studies program. The skills are coded with asterisks showing the grade levels at which they are to be introduced, developed, mastered, and continued for increasing sophistication. These charts are adapted from the rather extensive array of skills identified by the National Council for the Social Studies.

In addition to the charts, objectives of the Louisiana Social Program are further defined by the statements of program goals and course objectives and by course content outlines, unit overviews, and suggested activities and resources. Collectively these features seek to fulfill the ABC's of curriculum--articulation, balance, and continuity and, thereby, to provide a cumulative, developmental framework for Louisiana's children and youth.

INTRODUCTION

Rationale:

History has always been an important element within the social studies curriculum. In recent years, however, the study of history, particularly world history, has declined in Louisiana secondary schools. This guide is part of an effort to reaffirm the importance of world history in the Louisiana social studies curriculum.

The World History course proposed in this guide was developed around the core idea that people need a sense of history to understand who they are, how they came to be the way they are, and where they might be going based upon what is known about the past. The intent of this core idea is to help students appreciate the human race and themselves through the systematic study of past events and to understand the development of ideas which have helped to shape the nature of every person.

Through the study of world history, students can understand the larger world, the world beyond the nation-state. The contemporary world is much more interrelated than at any other time in our history. Global economic, political, cultural, and ecological systems affect everyone. Students, too, are affected by these global systems, and they will continue to be affected by them later when they assume roles as adult citizens, consumers, and workers. Studying world history can help the students to understand the formation and operations of these global systems. Although there is considerable debate about the organizational approach to use in a curriculum guide, it is very important that each of the world's major regions be systematically studied.

Numerous definitions of history are available. For the purposes of this guide, history has been defined as the unique process for passing on from one generation to another a record of previous generations' knowledge, values, and beliefs. Operating from this definition, the guide was written to identify the most important knowledge, beliefs, and values from past generations worth sharing with the next generation.

Scope:

This guide is divided into seven sections: Prehistory, The Ancient World, The Middle Ages, The Early Modern Age, The Later Modern Age, The Inter-War Period and World War II, and The Nuclear Age. But teachers may also restructure the guide in any number of ways to make it more consistent with their own preferences. Two other things have been done to make the guide more flexible for teachers. First, the guide is in loose-sheet form so that the Activity Sections can be moved into groups that are more consistent with individual preferences. The second feature of the guide which may help teachers organize the Activity Sections are charts listing objectives according to the geo-cultural areas, periods, and topics. Using these charts located on page 8 and in the Appendix can help teachers locate all objectives related to a particular geo-cultural area or topic.

This organizational pattern was chosen after reviewing evaluations of the pilot editions of the guide. In both written and oral critiques of the pilot versions, teachers were consistently in favor of a chronological approach to the organization of the guide. They clearly did not favor the geo-cultural area approach used in the pilot version. In reorganizing the pilot version of the guide into its present form, no significant elements of the earlier version have been left out. In fact, additional information, particularly in art, literature, and music, has been added.

It is important to be aware that the chronological organizational pattern also allows for opportunities to integrate a wide range of other instructional approaches and techniques.

Also, teachers should be extremely careful to ensure that this course remains as the teacher writing committee intended it: a historical survey of both the western and non-western world. The history of Western Europe should be used as a central element in the study of World History, but a conscious, systematic effort must be made to also study the non-western world. Within the various regions, the guide focuses on common political, social, economic, religious, and cultural events which serves as a basis for systematic historical analysis of the regions.

A major reason for this guide is to help students acquire a broader perspective from which to view both the diversity and commonality among people of the world. Systematic instruction about areas other than Western Europe can help reduce the ethnocentric view many students have of the world. To achieve this broader view, an understanding of the contributions made by the non-western world is especially important.

COURSE CONTENT:

The format used in this guide is very similar to that in the secondary social studies guides previously published by the Louisiana Department of Education. Each activity section contains a Generalization, a set of Concepts, an Objective, Content Outline, and Suggested Activities. Additionally, special enrichment information on art, literature, music, and special computer-related activities are provided.

Each unit begins with an overview that gives a description of what will be contained in the unit. It includes brief information about the most significant historical events of the era along with information about major artistic, literary, and musical achievements. A generalization is listed along with a set of associated concepts. A concept is a word or a phrase that is associated with an idea, and that idea has a particular set of attributes or elements associated with it. The Generalization is a statement which establishes a relationship among several concepts. It may be either descriptive (gives a description of a general principle) or empirical (makes a general statement that can be empirically verified).

Because of the enormous amount of information (content) associated with a world history program, concepts and generalization are very important because of their potential for helping to decide what information should be included and how that information should be organized. The writing committees, pilot teachers and the revision committee have reviewed and recommended the Generalizations and Concepts that are listed with this guide. These Generalizations and Concepts can be supplemented by others that the teacher may choose to use. Teachers are urged to remember that a well developed understanding of a powerful, enduring historical concept or generalization may have greater value to a student than the vague, random memory of a bite of historical information.

A rich, well developed content outline is provided. The outline includes many names, dates, and events considered by teachers and historians to be important in the study of world history, and this information constitutes the knowledge base of the program. However, teachers must exercise extreme care in selecting content for presentation to the student.

Excessive memorization of information should be avoided. Too often students quickly forget all but a small fraction of any material they have been compelled to memorize. Additionally, forcing students to memorize random, uninteresting information contributes to the development of negative attitudes toward the study of history. Therefore, emphasis should be placed on the well-paced acquisition of interesting information which contributes to student understanding and mastery of fundamental concepts and generalizations.

Although there is great diversity in the organization of world history textbooks, this guide can be used with textbooks currently on the State Adopted Textbook list. But regardless of the textbook used, teachers must still use considerable judgement in deciding how to use their particular textbook with this guide. In selecting content for students to study, several points should be considered. Since this course is a historical survey, emphasis generally should be placed on the scope, rather than depth, of study. Constant indepth treatment of every content outline item surely will result in unbalanced treatment of the various historical periods and geo-cultural areas.

The Objective is a statement of what the student is explicitly expected to learn. The statement is cast in behavioral terms, i.e., the student must be able to demonstrate what has been learned. The writing committee also identified with an asterisk certain specific objectives as grade level standards. These grade level standards are objectives which the writing committee thought were especially important and would be appropriate items to select from for any statewide testing. The depth of treatment of these and any other objectives remains the responsibility of the teacher. Further, teachers may identify other objective, they may wish to address.

The Activities are brief suggestions about things that could be done to help the student achieve the stated objective. They are student-centered and are designed to actively engage the student and to meet the needs of students of various skills and developmental levels. The activities are designated as follows:

- "A" are for students achieving at grade level.
- "B" are for students who are behind grade level.
- "C" are for advanced students.

The matching of students with activity levels is a task of the classroom teacher and may be accomplished in a variety of ways. Additionally, teachers should use their professional judgment in modifying any activity to suit the particular needs of their students. All teachers are encouraged to use whatever techniques, strategies, and resources necessary to help the student achieve the stated objective. There is no requirement that a particular student be assigned the same level of activity. One individual may be assigned "A" level for some objectives, "B" level for others, and "C" level for still others. A given class may or may not have students assigned to all three levels of the activities.

There are a significant number of objectives and content outline items which involve literary works, pieces of art, and architecture. In some sections the number of content outline items is quite lengthy. The writers did not intend for all these items to be addressed within the course or that particular section. Similarly, they did not intend for the list to be all inclusive. Teachers may add items they are familiar with and are worthy of mention. Teachers should, however, be very selective in studying these items. A careful examination of one or a few pieces of art or works of literature per unit is preferable to an exhaustive examination of all the listed items.

In working with the art, literature, and music items, teachers are encouraged to develop cooperative activities and projects with their colleagues in the English, Art, and Music Departments. Because of their background, training, skill, and knowledge, these teachers could be extremely helpful in the development of lessons or even units on art, literature, and music.

Teachers are especially urged to use activities which encourage historical interpretation. Students usually do not understand that the information presented in textbooks is substantially the author's interpretation of a given set of information. The nature of the information or evidence, the methods or processes used to analyze it and the author's perspective and judgment are all factors that can affect a particular interpretation. It is important that students be provided with opportunities to use the historical method, including original source information, to develop their own interpretations and judgments.

The guide includes a vocabulary list which identifies key words, phrases, and geographic terms. Students should have a strong understanding of these words in order to be successful in understanding the subject matter presented. Teachers are encouraged to emphasize vocabulary development throughout the World History course.

Finally, a resource section is provided at the end of the guide. The list includes appropriate books, periodicals, audiovisuals, and other resources. Also included in the resources are brief summaries about art and music for each section which should be used to supplement the historical information provided in each unit.

Unit I

Prehistory

This brief unit encompasses the development of prehistory from the time of the earliest evidences of man to approximately 5,000 B.C. when the first written records appeared. It will examine such things as artifacts, early geographic locations, and migrations. Special attention will be given to the importance of archaeology, archaeological techniques, and major archaeological sites in determining the conditions in which Paleolithic Man existed.

The unit will also provide information which will help to integrate primal art and music into the content outline. The subject of most Stone Age art was "Hunt Magic," religion, or human and animal fertility. By depicting a dead or wounded animal the artist (who may have been the tribal medicine man or shaman) sought to ritualistically kill the animal of the next day's hunt. In a like manner the creation of a small carved figure of a pregnant female would help to ensure that the fertility of animals was a frequent subject of Stone Age art.

Music in prehistoric times consisted of two of basic elements, rhythm and melody. Evidently, all people danced and sang (or grunted rhythmically) since cave paintings show people dancing.

- GENERALIZATION: Our interpretations of the past are constantly changing as new data and trends result in altered perspectives.
- CONCEPTS: Multiple causation, cause and effect, historiography, time perspective and chronology
- OBJECTIVE: The student will be able to locate major prehistoric archaeological sites.

COURSE OUTLINE:

- I. Pre-historic Era
 - A. Origins
 1. Platelet Theory
 2. Theory of Origins
 - B. Earliest anthropological finds in Africa
 1. The Leakey's in Tanzania and Kenya
 2. Donald Johnson's finds in Ethiopia
 - C. Other archaeological discoveries
 1. Asia, Java, Peking Man
 2. Western Europe (Neanderth and Cro Magnon)
 3. Americas (Bering Strait and Poverty Point)
 - D. Rain Forest people and Aborigines
 - E. Cultural developments
 1. Paleolithic man: hunters and gatherers
 2. Neolithic man: early domestication of plants and animals
 3. Beginnings of civilizations
 - a. Tigris and Euphrates Rivers
 - b. Yellow River
 - c. Nile River

ACTIVITIES

- A. Create a menu of foods easily accessible to early man in three different cultural locations.
 - B. Create an overlay showing migrations of civilizations in this area (Louisiana). Use a map showing the major rivers.
 - C. Conduct an inquiry lesson on the validity of the Platelet Theory. Contrast the Platelet Theory with other explanations of how the continents were formed. Construct a cut-out map showing how the continents fit together according to the Platelet Theory.
- ABC. Collect information on Poverty Point or any other archaeological area. Consider a field trip to one of these sites.

GENERALIZATION: Great ideas have affected all civilizations.

CONCEPTS: Civilization, ideology

OBJECTIVE: The student will be able to identify examples of primitive art.

COURSE OUTLINE

- F. Stone Age Art
1. Cave paintings
 - a) The Wounded Bison
 - (1) Altamira, Spain
 - (2) 15,000 - 10,000 B.C.
 - b) The Hunt (Dordogne)
 - (1) France
 - (2) 15,000 - 10,000 B.C.
 2. Carvings
 - a) Nude Woman
 - (1) Life size rock
 - (2) La Magdelaine Cave, Penne (Tarn), France
 - (3) 5,000 - 10,000 B.C.
 - b) Ritual Dance
 - (1) Rock engraving
 - (2) Cave of Addaura
 - (3) Monte Pellegrino (Palermo)
 - c) Venus of Willendorf
 - (1) Stone carving, Museum of Natural History, Vienna, Austria
 - d) Bison
 - (1) Carved reindeer horn
 - (2) La Madeleine near Les Eyzies (Dordogne)
 - (3) Museum of National Antiquities, St. Germaine-En-Laye, France

ACTIVITIES

- ABC. Create a list of basic human needs such as food, water, and housing. Create a set of symbols for each. Put the symbols together and share them with the class. Discuss the symbols and note any similarities in the items identified and the symbols used to represent the listed items.

Unit II

The Ancient World

This unit encompasses the period from the beginning of recorded history to the fall of the Roman Empire (5000 BC to 500 AD). The unit is generally concerned with the development of cultures and civilizations. Special emphasis will be given to the development of government, religion, philosophy, and technology. In addition, the unit will examine the relationships among migrations, conquests, and trade. As a group, these elements will determine the pattern of a given civilization.

Art in this unit will be examined from the time of the Fertile Crescent to the Fall of Rome. Information concerning the evolution of art from crude effigies to superb, highly developed Greek sculpture will be provided. The unit will trace the development of early architecture from the ziggurat of the Fertile Crescent and the Egyptian pyramid, to the classical Greek temple; of sculpture from stylized, free-standing, clay and stone figures of the Fertile Crescent and bas relief of Egypt to Classical Greek statues; and pottery from crude, clay pots to magnificent Grecian urns.

In music the unit will include information on the importance of the use of drums, cymbals, horns, and stringed instruments (zithers, dulcimers, psalteries, etc.) and how these instruments helped produce an integrated form of music.

Literature of the early civilization was essentially drama. The unit will provide information about tragedy's origin at the Greek festival of Dionysus and its characteristics, especially its attempt to arouse pity and terror, purge or purify, and reflect on the fearful punishment that important men and women brought upon themselves. Comedy, like tragedy, also began at the Festival of Dionysus. Through both humor and philosophy, the plays sought to infuse not merely a sense of morality, but rather a morality intended to instruct. Additionally, the unit will show how the Romans followed the powerful literary tradition established by the Greeks.

- GENERALIZATION: Great ideas have affected all civilizations.
- CONCEPTS: Civilization, ideology
- *OBJECTIVE: The student will be able to identify the major cultures of the Fertile Crescent.

CONTENT OUTLINE:

- II. The Ancient World (c. 5000 BC - 500 AD)
- A. Civilizations of the Fertile Crescent
1. Sumer (4000 B.C.)
 2. Babylon (2300 B.C.)
 - a) Hammurabi's Code of Laws
 - b) Extensive agriculture, commerce, and industry
 - c) Architecture, engineering, science, and religion
 3. Hittites: iron weapons
 4. Assyrians
 5. Persians
 6. Phoenicians
 7. Hebrews

ACTIVITIES

- A. Construct a chart outlining the major cultures and their contributions.
- B. Complete a crossword puzzle that requires the matching of Fertile Crescent cultures with their major contributions.
- C. Create a simple "code of laws" which you can compare with that of Hammurabi.

GENERALIZATION: Great ideas have affected all civilizations.

CONCEPTS: Civilization, ideology

OBJECTIVE: The student will be able to identify example of Fertile Crescent literature and architecture.

CONTENT OUTLINE:

8. Fertile Crescent Literature
 - a) Sumerian Writing
 - (1) Done on clay
 - (2) Pictograph in nature
 - (3) 4000-3501 B.C.
 - b) Sumerian Cuneiform, 3500-3001 B.C.
 - c) Behistum Rock
 - d) First Epic Tales of Gilgamesh, 3000-2501 B.C.
 - e) Sumerian poetry
 - f) Script changes from Sumerian to Semitic style, 2500-2001 B.C.
 - g) Epic poetry in Babylonia
 - h) Hammurabi's Code, 2000-1501 B.C.
 - i) Development of Phoenician alphabet
 - j) Torah, 1000 B.C.
 - k) Writings of Zoroaster, 600 B.C.
 - l) Book of Job, 400 B.C.
 - m) Book of Daniel, 165 B.C.
 - n) Book of Maccabees, 150-101 B.C.
9. Fertile Crescent Architecture
 - a) Temple at Al Ubaid, 3100-3500
 - b) Marduk Temple of Babylon (Tower of Babel), 601-700

ACTIVITIES

- A. Invite a clergyman to speak to the class on a topic such as the historical background of the Book of Job or Book of Daniel or the Old Testament as literature.
- B. Create a "contemporary Hammurabi's Code" listing offenses and possible penalties.
- C. In collaboration with the art department, construct and create bulletin board displays or models of Fertile Crescent art and architecture.

GENERALIZATION: Great ideas have affected all civilizations.

CONCEPTS: Civilization, ideology

OBJECTIVE: The student will be able to identify the major artistic contributions of the Fertile Crescent.

CONTENT OUTLINE: ACTIVITIES

10. Fertile Crescent Artwork
 - a) The White Temple on its Ziggurat
 - (1) 3500-3000 B.C.
 - (2) URUK
 - b) Statues from the Abu Temple
 - (1) 2700-2500 B.C.
 - (2) Marble, the Iraq Museum, Bagdad
 - c) Inlay of the soundbox of a harp
 - (1) 2600 B.C.
 - (2) UR
 - d) Stele inscribed with the Law Code of Hammurabi
 - (1) 1760 B.C.
 - (2) Diorite, Babylon
 - e) The Lion Gate
 - (1) 1400 B.C.
 - (2) Bogazkoy, Anatolia
 - f) Gate of the Citadel of Sargon II
 - (1) 742-706 B.C.
 - (2) Khorsabad
 - g) Billy Goat and Tree
 - (1) 2600 B.C.
 - (2) Gold, Wood, and Lapis Lazuli
 - (3) UR
 - h) The Ishtar Gate
 - (1) 575 B.C.
 - (2) Babylon

GENERALIZATION: Change has been a universal characteristics of all human societies.

CONCEPTS: Evolution/revolution, change

OBJECTIVE: The student will be able to discuss the reasons for the rapid rise and decline of the many Fertile Crescent civilizations.

CONTENT OUTLINE:

11. Decline of the civilizations in the Fertile Crescent
 - a) Lack of geographic features for protection
 - b) Cultural diffusion

ACTIVITIES:

- A. Do small group reports on the rise and decline of Fertile Crescent civilizations.
- B. Create a collage that combines drawings of the major cultural accomplishments of each of the Fertile Crescent civilizations.
- C. Write an editorial that analyzes the "future" of the Chaldeans "now that Nebuchadnezzar has died."

- GENERALIZATION: No historical events have result. from a single cause.
- CONCEPTS: Multiple causation, cause and effect
- *OBJECTIVE: The student will be able to explain the role of geography in the history of Egypt and the Fertile Crescent.

CONTENT OUTLINE

- B. Egypt:
1. Geographical advantages
 - a) The Nile River
 - b) Protection by surrounding seas and desert

ACTIVITIES:

- A. On an outline map label those geographic features which favorably influenced the development of civilization in the Middle East.
- B. Locate the Nile River, the Sahara Desert, the Mediterranean Sea, the Red Sea, and the Persian Gulf on a map of Egypt. Discuss how these geographical features influenced Egyptian history.
- C. Construct a relief map of Egypt on a wooden board. Use materials like clay and sand to depict deserts, the Nile River, etc.

GENERALIZATION: Changes in human society have been gradual through evolution or have been violent through revolution.

CONCEPTS: Multiple causation, cause and effect, continuity, evolution/revolution, change

OBJECTIVE: The student will be able to analyze the major events and kingdoms in Egyptian history.

CONTENT OUTLINE:

2. Kingdoms
 - a) Menes united the Upper and Lower Kingdoms (2900 B.C.)
 - b) The Old Kingdom - the Pyramid Age (3000-2300 B.C.)
 - c) The Middle Kingdom - the Feudal Age (2000-1800 B.C.)
 - d) The Hyksos invasion (1730 B.C.)
 - e) The Empire Age (1600 - 1200 B.C.) - important pharaohs included Hatshepsut, Amenhotep, and Ramses II

ACTIVITIES:

- A. Create a time line of the major events and kingdoms. Use student-created symbols.
- B. As a values clarification lesson, list the possessions that you would place in your tomb if you were to receive a "pharaoh's burial."
- C. Small groups should present oral reports on each of the major events and kingdoms in Egyptian history.

GENERALIZATION: No historical events have resulted from a single cause.

CONCEPTS: Multiple causation, cause and effect

OBJECTIVE: The student will be able to explain the reasons for the decline of Egyptian civilization.

CONTENT OUTLINE:

3. The decline (1100 B.C.)
 - a) Weak pharaohs
 - b) Foreign invaders

ACTIVITIES:

- A. Role play interviews with pharaohs from a period corresponding to the decline of Egyptian civilization. Use questions which probe the reasons for the decline.
- B. Acting as a modern journalist, write a brief news account of Alexander the Great's invasion of Egypt.
- C. Research the issue concerning which civilization, Egypt or the Hebrews, was the first to establish a monotheistic religion. Then conduct a debate. Special attention should be paid to Amenhotep's rule in Egypt and how it contributed to Egypt's decline.

GENERALIZATION: Basic values and beliefs of every society have been reflected in their creative accomplishments.

CONCEPTS: Continuity, ideology, cultural creativity

*OBJECTIVE: The student will be able to identify major contributions of the Egyptians.

CONTENT OUTLINE:

4. Cultural achievements
 - a) Agriculture, industry, and commerce
 - b) Architecture and engineering--the Sphinx, Pyramids, and Columns
 - c) Social classes
 - d) Government--dynasties, pharaohs
 - e) Mathematics and medicine
 - f) Education
 - g) Religion and ethics

ACTIVITIES:

- A. Construct an obelisk that depicts some of the major contributions of the Egyptians.
- B. Draw a cartoon satirizing the autocratic powers of a pharaoh.
- C. Create your own system of hieroglyphics. Use your symbols to tell a brief story.

GENERALIZATION: Great ideas have affected all civilizations.

CONCEPTS: Civilization, ideology

OBJECTIVE: The student will be able to identify major artistic contributions of the Egyptians civilization.

CONTENT OUTLINE:

5. Egyptian Art
 - a) Palette of King Narmer
 - (1) 3,100 B.C.
 - (2) Slate
 - (3) Egyptian Museum, Cairo
 - b) The Step Pyramid of King Zoser, 3rd Dynasty
 - (1) 2650 B.C.
 - (2) Saqqara
 - c) The Pyramids of Mycerinus
 - (1) 2500 B.C., Chefren, 2530 B.C.
 - (2) Cheops 2570 B.C., Giza
 - d) The Great Sphinx
 - (1) 2500 B.C.
 - (2) Giza
 - e) Chefrer
 - (1) 2530 B.C.
 - (2) Diorite, Egyptian Museum, Cairo
 - f) Prince Rahotep and his wife Nofret
 - (1) 2610 B.C. painted limestone,
 - (2) Egyptian Museum, Cairo
 - g) Cover of the Coffin of Tutankhamen
 - (1) 1360 B.C.
 - (2) Gold, Egyptian Museum, Cairo
 - h) Funerary Temple of Hatshepsut, 18th Dynasty
 - (1) 1480 B.C.
 - (2) Deir-El-Bahari

ACTIVITIES:

- A. Create small drawings of various contemporary subjects, topics, issues, etc. in an Egyptian style.
- B. Create an imaginary interior of an Egyptian pharaoh's tomb. Compare the drawings to information from reference materials.
- C. Create a "security system" for a pharaoh's tomb. Compete with other students to create a "grave robber"-proof pyramid.

GENERALIZATION: Great ideas have affected all civilizations.

CONCEPTS: Civilization, ideology

OBJECTIVE: The student will be able to identify major artistic contributions of the Egyptians' civilization.

CONTENT OUTLINE:

ACTIVITIES:

- (i) Queen Nefertiti
 - (1) 1365 B.C.
 - (2) 18th Dynasty
 - (3) Limestone
 - (4) Egyptian
- 6. Egyptian Literature
 - a) Pepi's Papyrus
 - (1) "Instructions to a son"
 - (2) 3000-2501 B.C.
 - b) Egyptian literature centers on lamentations and skepticism about meaning of life
 - c) "Story of Sinuhe" oldest form of novel
 - d) "Battle Between Head and Belly"
 - (1) Egyptian Fable
 - (2) 800-701 B.C.
 - e) Rosetta Stone, 300 B.C.
 - f) Book of the Dead
 - g) Book of Healing Diseases

GENERALIZATION: Geographic factors have influenced historical events.

CONCEPTS: Multiple causation, cause and effect, geographic history

OBJECTIVE: The student will be able to identify major geographic features and cultures of Africa.

COURSE OUTLINE

- c. Other African civilizations
 - 1. Geography and its influence on Africa
 - a) Sahara Desert
 - b) Nile River
 - c) The Great Rift Valley

ACTIVITIES

- A. Construct a relief map using materials such as clay or sand to recreate some of the major geographic features of Africa. Locate and label the most important features.
- B. Identify major geographic features and cultures of Africa on an outline map. Color code the map.
- C. Conduct a case study of a major African culture. Focus especially on the relationship between geography and the culture which developed within that geographic region.

GENERALIZATION: Basic values and beliefs of every society have been reflected in their creative accomplishment

CONCEPTS: Continuity, ideology, cultural creativity

*OBJECTIVE: The student will be able to analyze the major contributions and achievements of ancient African civilization.

COURSE OUTLINE

2. Early African Cultures
- a) Nok culture (1000 B.C.) West African culture
 - b) Kush
 - c) Alum culture
 - d) Zimbabwe culture
 - (1) Construction of the Acropolis
 - (2) Zimbabwe, 850 B.C.

ACTIVITIES

- A. Design a bulletin board depicting the major, ancient African cultures. Highlight their cultural achievements.
- B. Construct a chart of the major African cultures. Identify their locations, characteristics, achievements, and contributions to contemporary African culture.
- C. Research and write a documentary on ancient African cultures. Supplement with photographs, taped music, artifacts, art work, clothing, etc.

GENERALIZATION: Change has been a universal characteristic of all human societies.

CONCEPTS: Evolution/revolution, change

OBJECTIVE: The student will be able to describe major ancient cities of India and discuss the impact of the Aryan invasion on these cities.

CONTENT OUTLINE

- D. Ancient India
 - 1. Twin cities
 - a) Mohenjo-Daro
 - b) Harrapa
 - 2. People
 - a) Dravidians: A dark-skinned, primitive people
 - b) Aryans
 - (1) Iron weapons
 - (2) Caste system

ACTIVITIES

- A. Locate the ancient cities of India on an outline map. Draw sketches of the cities showing the important areas or zones within the cities: grainaries, housing areas, civic centers, government offices, etc.
- B. On a globe, locate India and identify where the ancient cities of India were located.
- C. Compare the ancient cities of India with other cities of the ancient world with respect to location, land size, population, economic activity, trading activities, and reasons for the disappearance of the Indian cities.

- GENERALIZATION: Great ideas have affected all civilizations.
- CONCEPTS: Civilization, ideology
- OBJECTIVE: The student will be able to identify the relationship between literature, the caste system, and Hinduism.

CONTENT OUTLINE

3. Indian culture and religion
 - a) Epic poems
 - (1) Vedas
 - (2) Upanishads
 - (3) Mahabharata
 - (4) Ramayana
 - b) Indian Literature
 - (1) Vedas 700-601 B.C.
 - (2) Upanishads
 - (3) Mahabharata
 - (4) Ramayana
 - (5) Buddha's inspiration
 - () 600-501 B.C.
 - (b) Turning of the Wheel of the Law
 - (6) Panchatantra, 300-201 B.C.
 - (7) Arthashastra
 - (8) Vardhamana Founds Jainism
 - (9) Kalidasa
 - (a) Sakuntala
 - (b) 200 A.D.
 - c) Hindu religion
 - (1) Three chief gods
 - (a) Brahma - the creator
 - (b) Siva (Shiva) - the destroyer
 - (c) Vishnu - the preserver
 - (2) All life is sacred.
 - (3) Reincarnation

ACTIVITIES

- A. Create a diagram illustrating the relationship between epic Indian poems, the caste system, and the Hindu religion. The diagram might look like this:

- Alternate A: Make a brief outline showing how religion or philosophy affects your life. For example, dress, food, school, social life, work, and home life. Then show how your life would be different if you were a Hindu in India today.
- B. Create a chart of the caste system. The chart should emphasize the role of occupations in the system. List each caste, the occupations associated with the caste, and which caste students might fall into if they were living in India under the caste system.

GENERALIZATION: Great ideas have affected all civilizations.

CONCEPTS: Civilization, ideology

OBJECTIVE: The student will be able to identify the relationship between literature, the caste system, and Hinduism.

CONTENT OUTLINE

- d. Caste system-based occupations
- (1) Brahmans (priests and scholars)
 - (2) Kshatriyas (rulers and soldiers)
 - (3) Vaisyas (landowners, merchants, artisans)
 - (4) Sudras (laborers, servants, wage earners)
 - (5) Pariahs (Untouchables: Those associated with "impure" occupation--For example, animal skinners, gravediggers, and hunters)

ACTIVITIES

- C. Simulate a caste system with the students divided into each of the four castes. Randomly assign students to a caste. Have the class role play a day in the life of an Indian teenager under the caste system. Be sure to include the reaction to an "untouchable" encountering a member of another caste.

- GENERALIZATION: Great ideas have affected all civilizations.
- CONCEPTS: Civilization, ideology
- OBJECTIVE: The student will be able to identify examples of Indian art.

CONTENT OUTLINE

- e) Indian Art
- (1) Capital from An
 - (a) 200 B.C. Lion
 - (b) Asokan column
 - (2) Shwe Dagon Pagoda
 - (a) 600-501 B.C.
 - (b) Burma
 - (3) Great Stupa, 100-51 B.C.
 - (4) Carvings on Amaravat
 - (a) 151- 70 A.D.
 - (b) Stupa
 - (5) Kasyapa, the Parricide Palace at Sigiraya
 - (a) 451-500 A.D.
 - (b) famous "cloud maidens" cave paintings

 - (b) Bihar (Northern India)
 - (7) Revival of stone sculpture and architecture in India, 615 A.D.
 - (8) Rock temple of Rathas
 - (a) 635 A.D.
 - (b) Mamalhopuram
 - (9) Brihadisva-Rasvamin Temple
 - (a) 1018 A.D.
 - (b) Tangore, India
 - (10) Jain temples
 - (a) 1050 A.D.
 - (b) Mount Abu, India

ACTIVITIES

- A. Create a bulletin board display of Indian art. Research various sources such as art books, journals, and magazines for information. If possible, invite an Indian or a resource person familiar with Indian art to the class to explain Indian art and to discuss its relationship to Indian culture, especially religion.
- B. Write to the Indian government requesting information about architectural sites that are of interest to tourists. Display the information on a collage or a bulletin board. (Note: The address for the India Embassy is listed in the back of this guide.)
- C. Conduct a class project on Indian art. Collect information about the origins, style, and forms used in the art. Complete short reports on the relationship between Indian art and culture.

GENERALIZATION: A knowledge of the past is necessary to understand present and future events.

CONCEPTS: Evolution/revolution, historiography

OBJECTIVE: The student will be able to recognize the contributions of the early Indian rulers.

CONTENT OUTLINE

- f. Early dynasties
 - 1. Mauryas (300 B.C.)
 - 2. Guptas (320 A.D. - 525 A.D.)
 - a) Mathematics
 - b) Woven cotton
 - c) Rust proof iron
 - d) Trade with the Middle East
 - e) Classical high point

ACTIVITIES

- A. Create a collage depicting those items and ideas from the Mauryas and Guptas dynasties that are still in use today.
- B. Develop a list of the early dynasties with a list of their contributions.
- C. Compare the achievements during the Mauryas and Guptas dynasties with the achievements of the civilizations of the Middle East.

GENERALIZATION: A knowledge of the past is necessary to understand present and future events.

CONCEPTS: Time perspective and chronology, historiography

OBJECTIVE: Compare the living conditions, beliefs, and contributions of the Cahokian, Pueblo, and Inuit Indians.

CONTENT OUTLINE:

- E. North American (U.S.)
 - 1. Cahokians (East St. Louis, Illinois)
 - 2. Pueblo Indians (Southwest, United States)
 - 3. Eskimos (Inuit)--Alaska
 - a) Living styles
 - b) Contributions

ACTIVITIES

- A. Construct a chart comparing the Cahokian and Pueblo Indians in their living conditions, beliefs, and contributions.
- B. Design an illustrated time line comparing the development of ancient American cultures with the development of cultures in Europe.
- C. Construct a model Indian village featuring especially unusual aspects of each culture. For example, conduct research on the burial mounds of the Cahokian Indians, the cliff dwellings of the Pueblo Indians, or seasonal housing of the Inuits.

- GENERALIZATION: Basic values and beliefs of every society have been reflected in their creative accomplishments.
- CONCEPTS: Continuity, ideology
- OBJECTIVES: The student will be able to describe the characteristics of one of the three cultural centers of the classic Mayan period.

CONTENT OUTLINE:

- F. Central and South American (pre-Columbian) civilizations
1. Olmecs (to 200 B.C.)
 - a) Geographic settlement
 - b) Religion
 - c) Olmec influence: Base culture of Mesoamerica
 2. Mayas (2300 B.C. to 1200 A.D.)
 - a) Classic period (to 900 A.D.): Highland civilization
 - (1) Geographic settlement/cultural centers
 - (a) Copan
 - (b) Palenque
 - (c) Tikal
 - (2) Religion
 - (a) Temples
 - (b) Role of the priests
 - (c) Religious ceremonies

ACTIVITIES:

- A. Role play someone who has been able to return to the classic Mayan period. Describe to the class the kinds of things you saw on your journey.
- B. Draw pictures of an ancient Mayan city from oral descriptions.
- C. Construct a scaled model of the principal buildings of Tika, Palenque, or Copan.

GENERALIZATION: Basic values and beliefs of every society have been reflected in their creative accomplishments.

CONCEPTS: Continuity, ideology, cultural creativity

*OBJECTIVES: The student will be able to describe the achievements of the classical Mayan period.

CONTENT OUTLINE:

- b) Government
- c) Economy
- d) Achievements
 - (1) Architecture: pyramids
 - (2) Calendar
 - (3) Astronomy
 - (4) Mathematics
 - (5) Written language

ACTIVITIES:

- A. Create a collage featuring the major achievements of the classical Mayan period.
- B. Create a hieroglyphic system which can be used to write students' names
- ABC. Create a sign translating the numbers one to twenty into Mayan numbers. Calculate simple problems using the Mayan system.

GENERALIZATION: A knowledge of the past is necessary to understand present and future events.

CONCEPTS: Time perspective and chronology, historiography

OBJECTIVES: The student will be able to identify historical theories on the decline of the ancient Mayan civilization.

CONTENT OUTLINE:

- e) Abandonment of the cities/migration mystery theories
 - (1) Disease
 - (2) Conquest
 - (3) Civil War
 - (4) Famine
 - (5) Soil exhaustion
 - (6) Decline of priestly power

ACTIVITIES:

- A. Complete a short report on one or more of the theories on the decline of the ancient Mayan civilization.
- B. Develop a collage featuring the theories on the decline of the ancient Mayan civilization.
- C. Write research reports on each of the historical theories about the decline of the Mayan civilization. Give oral reports defending the theory that seems most defensible.

GENERALIZATION: Great ideas have affected all civilizations.

CONCEPTS: Civilization, ideology

OBJECTIVES: The student will be able to identify examples of early Latin American art.

CONTENT OUTLINE:

3. Early Latin American Art
 - a) Mexican Sun Pyramid
 - (1) Teotihuacan
 - (2) 1500-1001
 - b) Mexican Sun Temple Atetello

- B. Make a chart listing ideas contained in Christianity which were new to the Romans.
- C. Role play the part of a Roman senator speaking to the Senate concerning the growing influence of the Christian religion.

UNIT III

The Middle Ages

This unit is basically concerned with Western Europe after the fall of the Roman Empire, the emergence of the Muslim-Arab culture, and events in India, Russia and China, which encompassed the period 500 A.D. to 1500 A.D. Special attention should be given to the role of religion in various cultures, the development of feudalism in Western Europe and the wars and invasions which permanently affected both eastern and western societies. As a result of this tumultuous period, religions became institutionalized, societies became more structured, national boundaries became more formalized, and a renewed interest in culture emerged.

This unit focuses on Byzantine, Islamic, Gothic, and Oriental art. It offers an opportunity to compare monumental Byzantine architecture with the light, airy, Moorish style; the upward flamboyance of the Gothic; or the tranquil simplicity of the Oriental style. In Western Europe, Gothic art reversed the earlier Classical styles. Art of the time was powerfully influenced by religion. In the West, the Gothic style distorted human proportions into squat, large-headed figures while in the East the Byzantines used elongated, mystical figures.

Music before 1000 A.D. consisted of the free melodic line. Byzantine music was influenced by the richness of the Persian-Indian style while Western music was more austere. Music styles diverged sharply with the introduction of counterpoint in the West.

Religion also influenced literature in this period. The vernacular replaced Latin as the dominant language form, mythological beasts were replaced with more human adversaries, and the literature as a whole acquired a new degree of sophistication, power, and humanity.

GENERALIZATION: No historical events have resulted from a single cause.

CONCEPT: Multiple causation, cause and effect

OBJECTIVE: The student will be able to explain why the Eastern Roman Empire outlived the Western Roman Empire.

CONTENT OUTLINE:

- III. Middle Ages (500 A.D. - 1500 A.D.)
 - A. Eastern Empire
 - 1. The Byzantine Empire
 - 2. Justinian
 - 3. Decline of the empire

ACTIVITIES:

- A. Role play a meeting of Visigoths who are trying to decide the direction they should use to attack the Roman Empire.
- B. Construct a time line that traces the accomplishments and military victories of Justinian. Illustrate the chart with hand-drawn pictures and maps.
- C. Compare a set of hypotheses to explain the longevity of the Byzantine Empire. After conducting the appropriate research, analyze the merits of each of these hypotheses.

GENERALIZATION: Great ideas have affected all civilizations.
CONCEPT: Civilization, ideology
OBJECTIVE: The student will be able to identify examples of Byzantine art.

CONTENT OUTLINE:

- B. Byzantine art
 - 1. S. Vitale

UNIT IV

The Early Modern Age

The early modern period (1500 to 1700) in Western Europe deals with the intellectual ferment in literature, science, technology, art, and religion. (The Renaissance and Reformation) Voyages of discovery brought Europeans into close contact with the civilizations of India, China, Japan, and Africa, and led to the conquest and exploitation of the peoples of the Americas. The diverse economic, social, political, intellectual, and artistic contributions of Western European, American Indian, African, and Eastern civilizations are emphasized as are historically significant personalities.

Renaissance art returned to the monumental order of Greek and Roman art, but with a new sense of realism. The wealth of the new merchant class and the Church provided support for artists and a market for their works. The subsequent Baroque period mirrored the spirit of the Counter Reformation. Old realism gave way to "new naturalism," with the classical style descending to the irregular, distorted, and grotesque.

With the Renaissance came a rebirth of learning, a flowering of arts and letters that spread from Italy in the 14th century. The literature of the Renaissance reflected not only a rebirth of Greek and Roman culture and an abandonment of all things Medieval, but also it encompassed a movement away from piety and class consciousness towards new skepticism, new individualism, and new materialism.

Music of the Renaissance was strongly influenced by Humanism which emphasized man's life on earth. Roman masses were the major form of Renaissance music and continued to be the major form during the Reformation. In Calvinist churches metrical psalm settings were used except by the Lutherans who added congregational singing to the Mass.

GENERALIZATION: Basic values and beliefs of every society have been reflected in their creative accomplishments.

UNIT V

Later Modern Age

During this period (1700-1919), western civilization is characterized by increasingly democratic governments, industrialized economies, advances in technology, and increasingly nationalistic and imperialistic attitudes. In the Americas, the emergence of the United States as an industrial and imperial power is noted. The Latin Americas--South America, Central America, the Caribbean, and Mexico--achieve independence and develop their own national institutions. Increasingly, the vulnerable areas of Asia such as China, India, and Indo-China, are victims of Western imperialism, as is Africa. Increasingly, we note during this unit that the world is so interconnected that events in one area profoundly affect other areas. Thus national rivalries and imperialism of the western powers contribute to World War I whose causes, course, and global results are noted.

Schools of art during this period are varied, but can generally be placed in four categories: Romanticism, Neo-Classicism, Realism, and Impressionism. Romanticism desired a return to nature and their paintings idealized emotions. Neo-Classicism was a new revival of classical antiquity. Realism viewed people as types rather than individuals and represented them with a photographic eye to detail. Impressionism was realistic in form but created an impression of a subject rather than a true representation.

Literature and art during this period are closely related. Romanticism glorified nature and the nobility of the individual man. Neo-Classical literature returned to the classical forms and styles personified through domestic tragedy, extensive use of blank verse, journals, and literary criticism. During the Victorian period, literature was affected by Darwinian science, the Industrial Revolution, and the rise of the new middle class. Novels and magazines featuring political and social criticism became popular literary forms. Realism in literature centered its attention on the immediate, the here and now, the specific action, and the verifiable consequence. Generally, the writers were pragmatists and the truth they sought to find and express was a relativistic truth, verifiable by experience. In addition, they were believers in democracy, and the materials they elected to describe were the common, the average, the everyday. They protested against the failures and sentimentality which they thought had dominated the romantic period and believed that language which was simple, clear, and direct provided the most desirable vehicle.

Music during this period moved from the rigid formalism of the Neo-Classical period through the lush evocations of the Romantic Age.

GENERALIZATION: The motivating factors in human achievement have been either ideological or materialistic.

CONCEPTS: Multiple causation, cause and effect, ideology

OBJECTIVE: The student will be able to analyze the strengths and weaknesses of the Articles of Confederation.

CONTENT OUTLINE:

3. Formation of a government
 - a) The Articles of Confederation
 - b) Constitution of the United States

ACTIVITIES:

- A. Construct a bulletin board comparing the strengths and weaknesses of the Articles of Confederation. Create a column which allows for a comparison of the United States Constitution.
- B. Complete a chart identifying the weaknesses under the Articles of Confederation and the improvements achieved under the Constitution.
- C. Conduct a "McNeil/Lehrer Report" kind of program on one aspect of the proposed Constitution. The report could include interviews with Madison, Hamilton, or Jay.

GENERALIZATION: Our interpretations of the past are constantly changing as new data and trends result in altered perspectives.

CONCEPTS: Historiography, time perspective and chronology

OBJECTIVE: The student will be able to list and explain the acquisition of western territories.

CONTENT OUTLINE:

4. The early 1800's
 - a) Political implications
 - b) Westward expansion
 - c) Immigration

ACTIVITIES:

- A. Draw a transparency map with overlays showing the acquisition of western territories using a chart with appropriate information to accompany the maps.
- B. Using an outline map construct a legend indicating the acquisition of territories.
- C. As a newspaper reporter accompanying the Lewis and Clark expedition, write a series of dispatches describing the progress of the expedition.

GENERALIZATION: No historical events have resulted from a single cause.

CONCEPTS: Multiple causation, cause and effect

OBJECTIVE: The student will be able to discuss how sectionalism led to secession.

CONTENT OUTLINE:

5. Sectionalism
 - a) Political differences
 - b) Social differences
 - c) Economic differences
6. Secession

ACTIVITIES:

- A. Conduct a mock interview with a southern plantation owner explaining the need for slavery in the South. For contrast, interview an abolitionist.
- B. Construct a map indicating the products associated with major regions of the United States during the period just before the Civil War.
- C. Conduct a "Point/Counter-Point" dialogue between John C. Calhoun and Daniel Webster.

GENERALIZATION: Changes in human society have been gradual through evolution or have been violent through revolution.

CONCEPTS: Multiple causation, cause and effect, continuity, change, evolution/revolution

Examine such things as books (Reconstruction in Louisiana Joe Gray Taylor), magazines (American History Illustrated or Civil War Times), journals (Louisiana History Journal), diaries, and so forth. Examine and report on these sources.

GENERALIZATION: Technological advances have been a major influence in changing power structure.

CONCEPTS: Multiple causation, cause and effect, continuity, change

OBJECTIVE: The student will be able to discuss the importance of industrialization, immigration and the labor movement during the nineteenth century.

CONTENT OUTLINE:

9. The late 1800's
 - a) Industrialization
 - b) Labor movement
 - c) Immigration

ACTIVITIES:

- A. Construct a chart that visually depicts the products of the United States.
- B. Draw a series of cartoons depicting aspects of the early labor movement, immigration, or industrialization.
- C. Using Thomas Nast cartoons or excerpts from Upton Sinclair's The Jungle, write an analysis of the impact that they have had on the American public during this period.

GENERALIZATION: The motivating factors in human achievement have been either ideological or materialistic.

CONCEPTS: Multiple causation, cause and effect, ideology

OBJECTIVE: The student will be able to list the major imperialistic acquisitions of the United States.

CONTENT OUTLINE:

10. Imperialism
11. Isolationism

ACTIVITIES:

- A. Role play interviews with residents of territories acquired by the United States during the late nineteenth century. Conduct the interviews with small groups within the class. Focus the discussions on the attitudes of the territorial residents. Compare and contrast the views of the various residents.
- B. On an outline map, indicate American overseas possessions between 1896 and 1917.
- C. Conduct a case study of the American acquisition of the Hawaiian Islands. Conduct the study from the perspective of a Hawaiian nobleperson (Queen Liliuokalani), an American missionary, a Congressman, and American businessman, and an American diplomat assigned to the islands.

GENERALIZATION: No historical events have resulted from a single cause.

CONCEPTS: Multiple causation, cause and effect

OBJECTIVE: The student will be able to summarize America's involvement in World War I.

CONTENT OUTLINE:

12. World War I
 - a) Causes for the United States' entry into the war
 - b) American contributions to war effort
 - c) Wilson's contributions to peace effort

ACTIVITIES:

- A. Create a diagram demonstrating the European alliance system, and how that system caused the involvement of the major European nations in World War I. Then develop a chronology of the events which caused the United States to become involved in the war.
- B. Show a movie about World War I such as "All Quiet on the Western Front," "Johnny Got His Gun," or "Gallipoli."
- C. Role play the Big Four at the Peace Conference. Compare student-generated terms with the actual armistice terms.

GENERALIZATION: Leadership of certain individuals has had a profound influence on the course of history.

CONCEPTS: Multiple causation, cause and effect, leadership

OBJECTIVE: The student will be able to identify major Canadian explorers and the regions they explored.

CONTENT OUTLINE:

 - 1. The Canada Act of 1791
 - 2. Explorers
 - a) Alexander MacKenzie
 - b) David Thompson
 - c) Simon Fraser
 - 3. Moving toward self-rule

ACTIVITIES:

- A. Create a geographic puzzle of Canada that the has to be pieced together. The pieces should be associated with the major explorers.
- B. List the major Canadian explorers on a chart. Indicate the areas they explored, dates of exploration, countries for whom they explored, and so forth.
- C. Write a set of journal entries of one of the Canadian explorers. Emphasize how cold the Canadian weather is as compared with that of Louisiana. Focus on the environment.

GENERALIZATION: Changes in human society have been gradual through evolution or have been violent through revolution.

CONCEPTS: Multiple causation, cause and effect, continuity, change, evolution/revolution

OBJECTIVE: The student will be able to trace the development of Canadian self-rule through five major events.

CONTENT OUTLINE:

4. Canadian Self-Rule
 - a) War of 1812
 - b) Canadian Revolt: 1837
 - c) Durham Report: 1839
 - d) The Union Act: 1840
 - e) British North American Act: 1867

ACTIVITIES:

- A. Construct a chart listing the evolution of Canadian self-rule. Note especially how the French and English cultures were accommodated within the movement.
- B. Design a simple time line of the major events facilitating the development of Canadian self-rule.
- C. Contrast the Canadian movement toward self-rule with the Latin American nationalist movements through interviews with major figures in the movements in each area.

GENERALIZATION: Great ideas have affected all civilizations.

CONCEPTS: Civilization, ideology

OBJECTIVE: The student will be able to outline the basic structure of the Canadian government.

CONTENT OUTLINE:

5. Canadian cabinet and governmental system
 - a) Parliamentary process
 - b) Provincial governments

ACTIVITIES:

- AB. Create a chart comparing and contrasting Canadian government and United States government.
- C. Simulate a Canadian parliamentary discussion of a major issue such as acid rain caused by United States industries along the Canadian border. Compare the parliamentary procedure used by the Canadians with the procedure used by the U.S. Congress to address a similar issue.

GENERALIZATION: No historical events have resulted from a single cause.

CONCEPTS: Multiple causation, cause and effect

- B. Make a collage portraying various class levels in the United States and compare and contrast with those of Mexico.
- ABC. Role play a television feature reporter assigned to cover Pancho Villa and Emiliano Zapata during the Mexican Revolution. Write an account of your impressions and report to the class on the "Six O'Clock-Eyewitness News."

GENERALIZATION: A knowledge of the past is necessary to understand present and future events.

CONCEPTS: Time and chronology, historiography

OBJECTIVE: The student will be able to explain the major tenets of the Monroe Doctrine.

CONTENT OUTLINE:

- d) France attempts to establish an empire in Mexico
 - (1) Napoleon makes Maximilian emperor
 - (2) Monroe Doctrine
 - (3) United States/Mexico force French out

ACTIVITIES:

- A. Draw and caption a political cartoon pertaining to the Monroe Doctrine.
- B. Construct a time line showing instances in which the Monroe Doctrine has be used in the 19th century.
- C. Read the text of the Monroe Doctrine and discuss its implications and ramifications.

GENERALIZATION: The motivating factors in human achievement have been either ideological or materialistic.

CONCEPTS: Multiple causation, cause and effect, ideology

OBJECTIVE: The student will be able to identify the major events in the Central American independence movement.

CONTENT OUTLINE:

6. Central American independence
 - a) 1821 Declaration of Independence
 - b) United Provinces of Central America
 - (1) Guatemala
 - (2) Nicaragua
 - (3) Honduras
 - (4) El Salvador
 - (5) Costa Rica

ACTIVITIES:

- A. Create a collage depicting the independence movement in Latin America. Create individual elements in the collage representing each country.
- B. Create a bulletin board display depicting the independence movement in Latin America. Send requests for information about the independence movement to each country's consulate or embassy. Use the information gathered to enrich the display.
- C. Invite a resource speaker to talk on the independence movement in Latin America. Exchange students or newly arrived immigrants from a Latin American country would be useful resource people.

GENERALIZATION: The motivating factors in human achievement have been either ideological or materialistic.

CONCEPTS: Multiple causation, cause and effect, ideology

OBJECTIVE: The student will be able to explain early imperialism and dollar diplomacy in the Caribbean and in Central America.

CONTENT OUTLINE:

- 6. (Continued)
- c) Dollar diplomacy
- d) Imperialism

ACTIVITIES:

- ABC. Bring in various products from Latin American countries and display them. Supplement the display with graphs and charts showing the economic importance of these items to the respective countries. Conduct a group discussion of the importance of the American market for these products and the involvement of American business with the products.

- ABC. Conduct a "point/counter-point" presentation on American involvement in Latin America. One point of view should be that of a Latin American nationalist and the other should be that of an American international businessman.

GENERALIZATION: The rise of nationalist movements has altered the course of history.

CONCEPTS: Multiple causation, cause and effect, nationalism/internationalism

OBJECTIVE: The student will be able to report the major influences on Caribbean independence.

CONTENT OUTLINE:

7. Independence in the Caribbean
 - a) Liberation of Haiti (1804)
 - (1) Toussaint L'Ouverture

- C. Do comparative case studies of civil disobedience in India and the United States as reflected by the actions of Mohandas Gandhi, Henry David Thoreau, and Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr.

UNIT VI

The Inter-War Period and World War II

This unit encompasses the period 1920 through 1945, from the end of World War I to the end of World War II. The first theme of this unit deals with the causes and disastrous world-wide effects of the Great Depression, which led, in great part, to a loss of faith in liberal, democratic, capitalistic systems. In various areas of Western Europe, Japan, China, and Latin America, extreme political forms such as Italian, Fascism, German Nazism, Japanese National Militarism, and Communism found adherents. World War II was the result of a series of aggressive actions by the Axis powers of Italy, Germany, and Japan involving all areas of the world and all peoples. The causes of World War II and its effects are covered in this unit. Emphasis is placed on the moral question of personal responsibility versus the demands of the State.

The style of Frank Lloyd Wright greatly influenced architecture of the period. In art there were two major styles: Surrealism and Abstract. Surrealism was developed out of exploration of the human mind and psychoanalysis. The dream state was the realm of the surrealist. Abstract painting used intrinsic form with little or no attempt at pictorial representation.

Modernism in literature involved a distinctive kind of imagination, often infusing within the work a sense of alienation, loss, and despair. It rejected not only history but also traditional values and the rhetoric by which they were communicated. Furthermore, the literature elevated the individual and the inner being over the social being, and preferred the unconscious to the self-conscious. In many respects it was anti-intellectual, celebrating passion and will over reason and thrived on experimentation with form, symbol, and myth.

In serious music there was much experimentation especially with forms, scales, and the use of jazz rhythms. There was an explosion in popular music due to the growing number of radios and talking movies.

GENERALIZATION: The motivating factors in human achievement have been either ideological or materialistic.

CONCEPTS: Multiple causation, cause and effect, ideology

OBJECTIVE: The student will be able to outline the problems brought about by the Great Depression and the New Deal programs used to counter the Great Depression.

CONTENT OUTLINE:

- VI. The Inter-war period and World War
 - A. The U.S. during the Inter-war period
 - 1. Return to isolationism

 - c) Material losses

ACTIVITIES:

- A. Design a time line listing the major events of World War II and the subsequent events which caused the Cold War.
- B. Create overlay maps showing different aspects of World War II, for example, countries involved, areas controlled during various periods, alliances, and so forth.
- C. Simulate propaganda techniques used during World War II. Use such things as posters and radio broadcasts ("Tokyo Rose," "Axis Sally," "Lord Haw Haw," and so forth).

UNIT VII

The Nuclear Age

The Nuclear Age, encompassing the period 1945 to the present, deals first with the development of the Cold War and the rivalries for political, economic, and military dominance which it engendered. Second, a social, political, and economic survey of the modern world is presented. Last, serious problems such as human rights, population growth, natural resources, and nuclear proliferation are presented as a challenge to the student.

Art during this period can best be described as "anything goes." No one style or order stands out as it did in the past. Because of the greater diversity of styles, more emphasis will be given to individual artists.

Literature during this period was a continuation of earlier 20th century motifs, marked by an emphasis on experimentation and the emergence of the anti-hero.

The contemporary period is characterized by the tremendous number of forms and styles in popular music and continued experimentation in serious music.

GENERALIZATION: Technological advances have been a major influence in changing power structure.

CONCEPTS: Multiple causation, cause and effect, continuity, change

OBJECTIVE: The student will be able to discuss the role of the United Nations in postwar Europe.

CONTENT OUTLINE:

- VII. Nuclear Age
 - A. World War II
 - 1. Causes
 - 2. Results
 - c) Postwar United States
 - (1) The Cold War

ACTIVITIES:

- A. Design a time line listing the major events of the Cold War.
- B. Create overlay maps showing different aspects of the Cold War, for example, countries involved, areas controlled during various periods, alliances and so forth.
- C. Simulate propaganda techniques used during the Cold War. (Use such things as Pravda press releases, Radio Free Europe, etc.)

415

GENERALIZATION: Human progress has most often occurred under conditions of intersocietal communication.

CONCEPTS: Multiple causation

OBJECTIVE: The student will be able to trace major post-World War II movements.

CONTENT OUTLINE:

- (2) The civil rights movement
- (3) Technological advances
- (4) The threat of thermonuclear war

ACTIVITIES:

- A. Conduct a panel discussion on major social, political and economic trends in post-World War II America. Examine such issues as civil rights, nuclear proliferation, and technological advancement. Outline the major events, personalities, and fundamental reasons for their importance to American society.
- B. Conduct case studies of major issues in post-World War II America using a TV or movie presentation. For example, use "Autobiography of Miss Jane Pittman" or "Roots" to examine the civil rights movement; "The Day After" to examine thermonuclear war; or "2001: A Space Odyssey" to study technological advancement. Follow each program with class discussions.
- C. Conduct a panel discussion on major movements in post-World War II America. Panel members should role play major figures in each of the movements. Members should represent different perspectives on the issues. Conduct class discussions based on information presented by the panel.

GENERALIZATION: Technological advances have been a major influence in changing power structure.

CONCEPTS: Multiple causation, cause and effect, continuity, change

OBJECTIVE: The student will be able to discuss the role of the United Nations in post-war Europe.

CONTENT OUTLINE:

- B. The United Nations
- C. Postwar Europe
 - 1. The Marshall Plan
 - 2. NATO/Warsaw Pact
 - 3. Truman Doctrine
 - 4. The European Economic Community ("Common Market")
- D. Major efforts to reduce world tension

ACTIVITIES:

- A. Construct a chart diagramming the organizational structure of the United Nations.
- B. Make a list of the Secretary Generals of the United Nations.
- C. Write a short paper on the importance of the Marshall Plan in the economic development of post-war Europe.

GENERALIZATION: Technological advances have been a major influence in changing power structure.

CONCEPTS: Multiple causation, cause and effect, continuity

OBJECTIVE: The student will be able to describe the major technological events and scientific advances made in the Soviet Union during the 20th century.

CONTENT OUTLINE:

- E. Soviet Union after World War II
 - 1. Reconstruction and economic recovery
 - 2. Struggle for power
 - 3. "Collective leadership"
 - 4. Period of "De-Stalinization"
 - 5. Russian imperialism
 - 6. Technological and scientific advances

ACTIVITIES:

- A. Construct a series of annotated time lines comparing the United States to the Soviet Union since World War II. Use time lines for political, social, economic, cultural, scientific, and technological events.
- B. Create a bulletin board display of major events in Soviet history since World War II.
- C. Conduct a panel discussion on the changes in the Soviet Union since World War II. Focus particular attention on significant scientific, technological, and political changes. In a subsequent class discussion focus on the lack of progress in the Soviet Union in the area of human rights and the production of consumer goods. Note especially the differences in the quality of life in both countries.

GENERALIZATION: All revolutions have altered the institutional structure of society.

CONCEPTS: Continuity, evolution/revolution, ideology

OBJECTIVE: The student will be able to compare the rebellion in Poland with the one in Hungary.

CONTENT OUTLINE:

7. The satellite countries
 - a) Poland
 - b) Czechoslovakia
 - c) Hungary
 - d) Romania
 - e) Bulgaria
 - f) Yugoslavia's break with Russia

12. Contemporary problems

ACTIVITIES:

- A. Conduct a "Meet the Press" program featuring leaders of Poland during the Solidarity demonstrations of the 1970's and 1980's, and Hungary during the 1953 uprising.
- B. Draw political cartoons depicting the political relationship between the Eastern bloc countries and the Soviet Union.
- C. Conduct a "You Are There" program from the Hungarian uprising of 1953 and the Solidarity demonstrations of the 1970's and 1980's.

- GENERALIZATION: A knowledge of the past is necessary to understand present and future events.
- CONCEPTS: Historiography, time perspective and chronology
- OBJECTIVE: The student will be able to outline Canada's participation in World War II and the post-war alliance systems.

CONTENT OUTLINE:

- F. Canada
 - 1. Western Alliance
 - a) NATO (1949)
 - b) NORAD (North American Air Defence Command)
 - 2. The 1950's
 - a) The question of diversity
 - b) The St. Lawrence Seaway

ACTIVITIES:

- A. Conduct a panel discussion on one of the following:
 - The pros and cons of Canadian participation in NATO
 - Accommodating French and English diversity within Canada
 - Economic and environmental implications of the St. Lawrence seaway
 - United States economic and cultural influences on Canada
- B. Make a collage depicting the effects of acid rain on the environment.
- C. Conduct an inquiry into the "acid rain" controversy between the United States and Canada.

GENERALIZATION: The rise of nationalist movements has altered the course of history.

CONCEPTS: Multiple causation, cause and effect, nationalism/internationalism

OBJECTIVE: The student will be able to trace the evolution of Canada's separatist movement.

CONTENT OUTLINE:

3. The separatist movement
 - a) Rene' Levesque: Parti Quebecois
 - b) Pierre Elliott Trudeau
 - c) Quebec Referendum on separation
 - d) Present status of separatist movement

ACTIVITIES:

- A. Role play a discussion between Pierre Trudeau and Rene' Levesque over the cultural, economic, and political aspects of separatism.
- B. On an outline map, indicate predominately English and French areas of Canada.
- C. Brainstorm reasons for separation from a nation. Analyze these reasons and apply them to current international situations such as the west bank of Israel, the Sikhs in India, the Basque in Spain, and so forth.

GENERALIZATION: No historical events have resulted from a single cause.

CONCEPTS: Multiple causation, cause and effect

*OBJECTIVE: The student will be able to list and explain the reasons for general instability in Latin America.

CONTENT OUTLINE:

- G. Contemporary Latin America
 - 1. Politics
 - a) Nations brought closer by World Wars I and II
 - b) Stability affected
 - (1) Continued foreign dominance via investment and/or aid
 - (2) Economic dependence on one chief export

 - (6) Slow industrialization
 - (7) History of coups d'etat
 - (8) Radical-vs-conservative change
 - (9) Differences in cosmopolitan composition of population
 - (10) Territorial disputes
 - (11) Dollar diplomacy

ACTIVITIES:

- A. Demonstrate the Caudillo concept by role playing actual speeches by Eva Peron, Fidel Castro, General Pinochet, Che Guevera, and Juan Peron.
- B. Do oral readings of segments of various speeches by Latin American leaders. Ask the class to respond following each reading.
- C. Develop a scrapbook featuring the reasons for instability in Latin America. Present oral reports on research involved with the scrapbook items. Include in the reports one on Costa Rica as an example of a stable democracy in Latin America.

GENERALIZATION: The rise of nationalist movements has altered the course of history.

CONCEPTS: Multiple causation, cause and effect, nationalism/internationalism

OBJECTIVE: The student will be able to describe the failures and successes of Pan-Americanism.

CONTENT OUTLINE:

- c) Pan Americanism
 - (1) Philosophy
 - (2) History
 - (3) Organization of American States

ACTIVITIES:

ABC. Poll each student on their favorite music star. Following the poll, instruct the class to reach a consensus within 15 minutes. Correlate this effort with Pan-Americanism.

GENERALIZATION: Changes in human society have been gradual through evolution or have been violent through revolution.

CONCEPTS: Multiple causation, cause and effect, continuity, change, evolution/revolution

OBJECTIVE: The student will be able to discuss the reasons for and the impact of the Cuban revolution.

CONTENT OUTLINE:

- d) Centers of turmoil
 - (1) Cuba
 - (a) Batista
 - (b) Castro and revolution
 - (c) Communism
 - (d) Bay of Pigs
 - (e) Cuban missile crisis
 - (f) Boatlift
 - (g) Latin American influence

ACTIVITIES:

- A. Simulate the Cuban missile crisis. Role play key figures of this crisis such as members of the Security Council, the President's advisers and Soviet, American and Cuban leaders. During the role playing have each of the 13 days of October represented by three minutes on the clock.
- B. List the key people involved in the Cuban missile crisis. Match the person to the nation he represents and denote his position of power.

GENERALIZATION: A knowledge of the past is necessary to understand present and future events.

CONCEPTS: Time perspective and chronology, historiography

OBJECTIVE: The student will be able to describe and analyze recent political developments in Latin America.

CONTENT OUTLINE:

2. Chile
 - a) Allende
 - b) Marxism
 - c) CIA
 - d) Pinochet

 - f) Migration

ACTIVITIES:

- A. Write an entry in your diary of travels to Mexico City and Rio de Janeiro in 1930 and to Cancun and Brasilia today.
- B. Write to travel agencies requesting brochures and posters on tours of Mexico and Brazil. Display the photographs on the wall and compare the urban and rural areas with those of the United States.
- C. Construct a chart depicting population shifts in Mexico and Brazil from 1900 to the present. Note especially the areas of Brasilia, Cancun, Mexico, and Rio de Janero.

GENERALIZATION: The motivating factors in human achievement have been either ideological or materialistic.

CONCEPTS: Multiple causation, cause and effect, ideology

OBJECTIVE: The student will be able to evaluate the Japanese value system, especially its impact on individual attitudes.

CONTENT OUTLINE

H. Japan

1. Emperor denies divinity
2. New constitution
3. Economic world power
4. Imports and exports

ACTIVITIES

- A. Prepare a dialogue between a Japanese grandmother who was a young girl before World War II and her granddaughter who is a teenager today. Include the changing role of women, religion, the emperor, occupations, and population mobility.
- B. Prepare a list of common items used in the United States that are imported from Japan.
- C. Conduct a comparative case study of Japanese and American industrial workers. Focus on such things as commitment to the company, work ethics, management attitudes, role of unions, production techniques, benefits, etc.

GENERALIZATION: Great ideas have affected all civilizations.

CONCEPTS: Civilization, ideology

OBJECTIVE: The student will be able to identify major modern Japanese artistic accomplishments.

CONTENT OUTLINE

*OBJECTIVE: The student will be able to identify major events in modern China.

CONTENT OUTLINE

- I. China
 1. Communist and Nationalist struggle for control of China
 2. Nationalist China becomes a member of the Security Council
 3. Communists gain control in 1949
 4. Nationalist government moves to Taiwan
 5. United States does not recognize Communist China
 6. China's part in the Korean conflict
 7. Sino-Soviet split
 8. "Great Leap Forward"
 9. Cultural Revolution

ACTIVITIES

- A. Create a time line depicting the events taking place in China from Mao's takeover to the present time. Pictures of personalities and events may be copied from newspaper and magazines.
- B. Create a "poster wall" newspaper of major events in modern Chinese history.
- C. Institute an investigative study of the change that has occurred in the traditional Chinese family since the "Cultural Revolution."

GENERALIZATION: Change has been a universal characteristic of all human societies.

CONCEPTS: Change, evolution/revolution

OBJECTIVE: The student will be able to describe recent changes in Sino-American government policy in the areas of individual initiative and foreign affairs.

CONTENT OUTLINE

10. Contemporary Sino-American relations
 - a) China in the U.N. Security Council
 - b) Nixon visits the Peoples' Republic of China
 - c) Sino-American relations reestablished
 - d) Population problems
 - e) Westernizing influences

ACTIVITIES

- A. Invite in a resource speaker on China. The speaker could be a person who has visited China recently. In lieu of a resource speaker, use films or video tapes.
- B. Create a collage or mobile that features western influences in contemporary China.
- C. Conduct an inquiry lesson on population control or new western influences in China.

GENERALIZATION: The rise of nationalist movements has altered the course of history.

CONCEPTS: Multiple causation, cause and effect, nationalism/internationalism

OBJECTIVE: The student will be able to describe the emergence of nationalistic movements in southeast Asia in the Post-World War II period.

CONTENT OUTLINE

- J. Southeast Asia and the Pacific
1. Vietnam
 2. Laos
 3. Cambodia
 4. Burma
 5. Singapore
 6. Indonesia
 7. Malaysia
 8. Philippines

ACTIVITIES

- A. Make a list of reasons why the American colonies revolted against England. Compare that list with reasons why nations of Southeast Asia revolted against their European rulers. Note similarities and differences.
- B. Complete the following chart on contemporary Southeast Asian countries:

Country	Former Colony of	Date of Independence	Present Type of Government	Misc.

Example:

- | | | | | |
|------------|--------|------|-----------|---------------------------------|
| 1. Vietnam | France | 1955 | Communist | Divided into multiple countries |
|------------|--------|------|-----------|---------------------------------|

- C. Invite as a resource speaker a southeast Asian to discuss the nationalist movement in that part of the world.

GENERALIZATION: The rise of nationalist movements has altered the course of history.

CONCEPTS: Multiple causation, cause and effect, nationalism/internationalism

OBJECTIVE: The student will be able to locate the nations currently occupying the Middle East.

CONTENT OUTLINE

- K. Independence of Islamic nations
 - 1. Independence from European powers
 - a) Egypt
 - b) Jordan
 - c) Lebanon
 - d) Syria
 - e) Iraq
 - 2. Emergence of modern kingdoms
 - a) Iran
 - b) Turkey
 - c) Saudi Arabia

ACTIVITIES

- A. Create a miniature flag for every Middle Eastern nation. The flags should then be attached to an outline map of the Middle East.
- B. Locate and label the major nations of the Middle East on an outline map. Use a color code when writing their names to indicate the religion that dominates that particular area.
- C. Make a list of the leaders of all the Middle Eastern nations. Organize small groups to research each leader, and orally present evaluations of each one based on his job performance.

GENERALIZATION: A knowledge of the past is necessary to understand present and future events.

CONCEPTS: Historiography, time perspective and chronology

OBJECTIVE: The student will be able to analyze the United Nations' decision to partition Palestine.

CONTENT OUTLINE

- L. Israel
 - 1. The Holocaust
 - 2. The partition of Palestine: the creation of the state of Israel

ACTIVITIES

- A. Show movies dealing with the Holocaust, such as "Genocide" or "Night and Fog." Then have students role play a United Nations debate dealing with the problem of Palestine in 1947.
- B. Invite a resource speaker, such as an Israeli or Arab citizen, to discuss the creation of a separate Palestinian state.
- C. Stage a mock session of the United Nations General Assembly attempting to deal with the problems in Palestine in 1947. Groups should be organized to represent various nations, and the session should end with a vote on partition.

GENERALIZATION: A knowledge of the past is necessary to understand present and future events.

CONCEPT: Historiography, time perspective and chronology

*OBJECTIVE: The student will be able to outline the military conflicts that have taken place in the Middle East since 1945.

CONTENT OUTLINE

- M. Middle Eastern conflicts
 - 1. The Suez Canal crisis of 1956
 - 2. The Six Day War
 - 3. The Palestinian Crisis
 - 4. Crisis in Lebanon
 - 5. Revolution in Iran
 - 6. War between Iran and Iraq
 - 7. Conflict between Turkey and Greece

ACTIVITIES

- A. Create a bulletin board that chronologically depicts the Middle Eastern conflicts that have taken place since 1945. Pictures, drawings, and maps can be used to illustrate the facts.
- B. Write a letter to the Iranian ambassador to the United Nations. Ask him to justify the taking of the 52 American hostages.
- C. Present a "You Are There" program on the Suez Crisis of 1956. The Arab-Israeli conflict, the control of the Suez Canal and the financing of the Aswan Dam should be included. In addition, imaginary interviews with Nasser, Ben-Gurion, and Eden should be held. Developments in Washington, D.C., Moscow, Paris, and at the United Nations should also be considered.

GENERALIZATION: The motivating factors in human achievement have been either ideological or materialistic.

CONCEPTS: Multiple causation, cause and effect, ideology

OBJECTIVE: The student will be able to explain the role of oil as a political and economic factor in Middle Eastern diplomacy.

CONTENT OUTLINE

- N. The importance of oil in the Middle East
 - 1. Distribution of wealth
 - 2. Political and economic role

ACTIVITIES

- A. Create a chart that lists five of the world's largest oil suppliers and five of the world's largest users. Draw rough outline maps of each nation making their "geographic" sizes dependent on how much oil they supply or use.
- B. Role play an O.P.E.C. conference that is discussing the possibility of an oil embargo during an Israeli-Arab War.
- C. Write a hypothesis that specifies the best energy alternatives to oil based on availability, cost, and environmental impact. Research could include utilizing oil companies, power companies, and the United States Department of Energy.

- GENERALIZATION: The motivating factors in human achievement have been either ideological or materialistic.
- CONCEPTS: Multiple causation, cause and effect, ideology
- OBJECTIVE: The student will be able to summarize the roles that the United States and the Soviet Union play in the Middle East.

CONTENT OUTLINE

- O. Role of the United States and the U.S.S.R. in the Middle East
 - 1. America's ties with Israel
 - 2. Russian support for Syria, Iraq, and the P.L.O.
 - 3. The Persian Gulf

ACTIVITIES

- A. Conduct a debate entitled, "Resolved: The United States should use military force to keep the Persian Gulf open."
- B. Color the nations of the Middle East on an outline map. Use distinctive colors for those nations that are Soviet allies, American allies, and those nations that are neutral.
- C. Compose an editorial concerning American involvement in Lebanon. As a class, mail it in to a local newspaper. Continue to monitor the newspaper for any kind of response.

GENERALIZATION: A knowledge of the past is necessary to understanding present and future events.

CONCEPTS: Time perspective and chronology; historiography

*OBJECTIVE: The student will be able to describe and analyze the challenges facing the present and future generations.

CONTENT OUTLINE

- P. Challenges of the Future
 - 1. Nuclear proliferation
 - a) Arms race
 - b) Arms control
 - c) Growing nuclear club
 - 2. Population growth
 - a) Urban growth
 - b) World hunger
 - (1) Environmental problems
 - (2) Technological disparities
 - 3. Natural resources
 - a) Food
 - b) Mineral
 - c) Fossil fuels
 - d) Nuclear
 - 4. Human rights
 - a) Role of United Nations
 - b) Education
 - c) Terrorism

ACTIVITIES

- A. Conduct a panel discussion on one of the challenges (Example--natural resources). Have the panel present a variety of viewpoints.
- B. Make a poster that usually portrays the problems facing the modern world. (Cut-outs or original art work). This poster could show victims of hunger, a polluted river, race riots, etc.
- C. Role-play a meeting of the representatives of the U.S. and U.S.S.R. to discuss nuclear disarmament. Each representative will have facts and figures to back up his solutions or point of view.

GENERALIZATION: Great ideas have affected all civilizations.

CONCEPTS: Civilization, ideology

OBJECTIVE: The student will be able to identify major literary and artistic works of the post-World War II period.

ACTIVITIES

Important Note:

This list of artists and writers is far from complete. Additional entries are needed from Germany, France, Russia (Soviet), Latin America, Africa, China, India, Japan, Canada, and Australia. Primary emphasis of the above bibliography lay with U.S. and English literature.

SUGGESTED COMPUTER ACTIVITIES FOR WORLD HISTORY

1. Use a data base to create a timeline of major historical events. Separate data base can be created for each major geo-cultural region or time period.
2. Use a data base to create a glossary of key historical terms and/or people.
3. Use a word processing program to write "You Were There" journal or diary entries about major historical events. Use appropriate research to support the entries.
4. Use a print shop program to create news headlines, advertisements, editorials, want ads, and so forth for major historical events and/or periods.
5. Use a graphics program to display population changes, various kinds of economic activity, religious affiliations, and so forth.
6. Use an authoring program to simulate situations where major historical decisions were made.
7. Use a puzzle program to generate various word games and puzzles based on the glossary.

A BRIEF OVERVIEW OF MAJOR PERIODS

THE STONE AGE

From the confused haze of a distant past, historians have learned that man had been working with his hands as a tool maker somewhere around 600,000 B.C. In the processes of every day life one of our early ancestors may have picked up a small part of a burnt stick or a fragment of colored clay and found that he would produce a mark. From this discovery our species was launched on a sojourn into visual experiences of monumental proportions. This desire to create an artistic record of the history of man is a book whose chapters will never be complete.

After many years of progressive development man produced some of the earliest surviving examples of stone age art. The subject of most stone age art was "hunt magic," religion, or human and animal fertility. By depicting a dead or wounded animal the artist (who may have been the tribal medicine man or shaman) sought to ritualistically "kill" the animal of the next days hunt. In a like manner the creation of a small carved figure of a pregnant female would help to insure the fertility of the women of the tribe. The procreation of both humans and animals was a frequent subject of stone age art.

THE FERTILE CRESCENT

The Fertile Crescent, "like Egypt whose development was protected by natural barriers, was an open area divided into city states. Closely proximity to one another created a very similar artistic style. A large majority of the architecture centered around the walled citadel and temple Ziggurat constructed primarily of sun-dried brick. The sculpture is based on the cone or cylinder in the formation of the human body. The stone or clay effigies of gods and kings can be recognized by stiff upright posture, hands folded across the breast, simplified facial features with large "fish-like" eyes considered "the window of the soul."

EGYPT

The mystery of the Egyptian culture is one that has long intrigued scientist and artist alike. A civilization whose influences, both great and small, affected the development of most of the known world for thousands of years.

The growth of Egyptian art can be broken down into three general divisions; the old kingdom, middle kingdom, and new kingdom. These kingdoms are divided into the dynastic periods of the pharaohs (god kings) who were the supreme rulers and religious leaders of Egypt.

At first glance Egyptian art may seem to have changed little over thousands of years. Change did accrue in the basic style that prevented its extinction as an art form. Egyptian art was strictly controlled by the state religion, consequently changes were few and far between. Egyptian art can be identified by the geometric or cubic style in painting, sculpture, and architecture.

EARLY AEGEAN CIVILIZATION

Early Aegean art can be highlighted in the Cycladic, Minoan, and Mycenaean cultures. The inhabitants of the Cycladic Islands left little evidence of their existence outside of simple stone tombs littered with marble idols. These figures had a flat, wedge shaped body, hands crossed on the chest, columnar neck, flat egg shaped head with a wedge shaped nose. The artist had an extraordinary feeling for the organic structure of the human body.

The center of the Minoan life and art seemed to be centered around the palace. The architecture of the structure was loosely connected by individual sections several stories high with low ceilings supported by columns that tapered downward, topped by a wide, cushion-shaped capital. The rooms had an airy open quality decorated with frescoes.

The inhabitants of the Island of Crete have come to be called Mycenaeans, after Mycenae, the most important of their settlements. One of the outstanding features in architecture was the "Beehive Tombs." These were conical stone chambers built of concentric layers of precisely cut stone blocks. Alongside the dead were placed masks of gold or silver, drinking vessels, jewelry, and weapons all of an exquisite workmanship.

GREEK ART

The three stages of Greek art can be defined as archaic, classical, and hellenistic.

The outstanding features of archaic art can be represented in the development of the geometric, or orientalizing style. We know the geometric style from painted pottery, and small sculpture (monumental architecture and sculpture in stone did not appear until the seventh century). At first the pottery had been decorated with abstract designs. By the end of 800 B.C. human and animal figures are used.

The desire to build and sculpt in stone for the sake of permanence developed during the orientalizing period. In the outset the sculpture had a hard Egyptian resemblance. One difference can be noted. This is the first time in history where free standing sculpture of monumental size has been found.

The achievements in architecture were the development of the three classic orders, doric, ionic, and corinthian. Both the doric and ionic were developed at the same time and can be identified by the standard parts, and the sequence, constituting the exterior of most doric temples.

CLASSICAL AND HELLENISTIC ART

The classical and Hellenistic art was an outgrowth of "The Ultimate Beauty" philosophy. In the classical period the Greeks will bring the art of sculpture to a point of anatomical exactness working into the decadent in the Hellenistic Period. The sculpture can be identified by works that "stand" in the full sense of the word. Their stance is really an arrested walk, with the weight of the body resting evenly on both legs. The strict symmetry of the archaic has now given way to a calculated nonsymmetry. The body rests mainly in the left leg, and the right leg plays the role of an elastic prop or buttress to make sure the body keeps its balance.

A hallmark figure of Hellenistic architecture was the construction of the Tomb of Mausolus, who ruled Asia Minor in 350 B.C. This tomb was the only demonstration in architecture to correspond to the Parthenon in size. The structure rose to a height of 160 feet. A tall rectangular base of 117 feet and 82 feet deep supported a colonnade of ionic columns 40 feet tall, topped by a pyramid crowned by a chariot with statues of the deceased. The tomb was based on the idea of human life as a glorious struggle or chariot race.

ROMAN ART

The shape and flavor of Roman art is a direct adaptation of all that was Greek. One of the differences between the Roman and the Greek is the extensive use of concrete (a mixture of gravel and mortar with rubble). The use of this mixture enabled the building of very large public and domestic architecture.

The Basilicas, long halls serving a variety of civic purposes in Hellenistic times, under the Romans became a standard feature of every Roman town. Their function was to provide a grand setting for the courts of law under the empire as well as public baths.

The Romans had a love for sculpture and the demand for it was great. There were whole categories of sculpture produced for decoration only. Where the Greeks used sculpture to glorify the gods and the noble, the Romans took the ideal from it and showed the common side of man. Many examples of Roman architecture, sculpture, and painting can be found at Herculaneum and Pompeii, two Roman towns buried under the ash of Mount Vesuvius in 79 A.D.

GOTHIC ART

The term Gothic was coined for architecture, and it is in architecture that the characteristics are most easily recognized. Only during the past hundred years have we become accustomed to speak of gothic sculpture and painting. In the age of the great cathedrals, architecture retained its dominant role. Gothic sculpture, at first severely architectural in style, tended to become less after 1200. Its greatest achievements are between the years 1200 and 1400. Painting reached a climax of creative endeavor between 1300 and 1350 in central Italy. North of the Alps, it became the leading art form in 1400. Toward the middle of the fourteenth century, a "international Gothic" style develops everywhere. Shortly after that, this unity breaks down: Italy, with Florence in the lead, creates a new art form, that of the early Renaissance.

BYZANTINE ART

Soon after the division of the empire there emerged a style of art in the court at Constantinople in Byzantium. The influence of the east becomes discernible within the early beginning of the fifth century. In this time Constantinople not only reasserted its political dominance over the west but became the undisputed artistic capital as well.

An art form that was used frequently in Byzantine art was the mosaic. At the church of S. Vitale the Byzantine art is shown in two famous mosaics flanking the altar. We find an ideal of human beauty quite different from the squat, large-headed figures of early Christian art. In contrast we find extraordinarily tall, slim figures, with tiny feet, small, almond-shaped faces dominated by huge, staring eyes.

Of the surviving monuments of old Constantinople the most important by far is the Hagia Sophia (The Church of Holy Wisdom), the architectural masterpiece of the age.

Byzantine architecture also spread to Russia. There the basic type of Byzantine church underwent an amazing change through the use of wood as a structural material. The most famous product of this native trend is the Cathedral of St. Basil adjoining the Kremlin in Moscow.

RENAISSANCE

At the end of the late Gothic Age, Florence dominated the Renaissance with the original creators of the new style. The artists of the era began to go back to the large monumental order of the Roman and Greek art with a new sense of realism. The Church and the development of the new merchant class could afford to patronize most of the artists of the time. This allowed for the creation of a verity of subject matter ranging from saints, the holy family, and classical mythology to portraits, battles, and everyday life. The Renaissance later arose in all other parts of Europe, each adding its own particular flavor and invention.

BAROQUE

For almost a century, art historians designated baroque as meaning irregular, contorted, grotesque. It has been claimed that the baroque style expresses the spirit of the counter reformation, a dynamic movement of self-renewal within the Catholic Church. The old realism of the Renaissance will now give way to the "new naturalism" in painting, sculpture and architecture. Baroque art acknowledges no sharp distinction between sculpture and painting. Both may be combined to form a compound illusion, like that of a stage.

THE AGE OF REVOLUTION

Neoclassicism and Romanticism are the two art movements that came into being during the 1750's-1820's. As there were revolts in the political order of the west, this radical movement also included the arts.

Romanticism refers not to a specific style but to an attitude of mind that may reveal itself in any number of ways. The word derives from the writing of the time called "Romances" because they were written in a romance language, not Latin. The declared aim of the romantic, however, was to tear down anything in the way of a "return to nature." Man was to behave naturally, giving his impulses free rein. The romantic worshipped liberty, power, love, violence, or anything that aroused his responses and emotions. Neoclassicism is a new revival of classical antiquity; it is more consistent than earlier classicism. Neoclassical art was very popular with the architects of the new world.

THE INDUSTRIAL SOCIETY

REALISM AND IMPRESSIONISM

As a descriptive term, "realism" is one that does not conflict with the real identity of the figures or objects embodied in a work of art. It shows people as types rather than individuals. Drawn largely from the artists environment. In realism the artist works with hunters, peasants, and common workers over the rich and noble.

The word impression had been coined in 1874, after a hostile critic had looked at a painting by Claude Monet. Impressionist painting can be described as flooded with light, flickering networks of color with dappled patterns of shadow that radiate a human warmth. As with realism, impressionism drawn on the everyday work for its subject matter.

CUBISM

The Cubist Movement, started by Paul Cezanne in the late 1800's, gave us our first abstract art works of the 20th century. Pablo Picasso, a student of Cezanne brought the form to its full maturity. Picasso's revolutionary use of voids and solids is hard to describe. The early critics who saw only the prevalence of sharp edges and angles, called the new style cubism. In cubistic works we cannot be sure whether the shapes are concave or convex. Many of the shapes look like fragments of translucent forms. The cubistic treatment of the human body is not only out of proportion, but the organic integrity and continuity are denied. The figures as well as their setting are broken up into angular wedges or facets to the point where they resemble a field of broken glass.

THE SECOND WORLD WAR

The 1930's was a decade of depression, reaction, and isolation in politics and art. A very different kind of expressionist or realist-expressionist came out of this time called social realism. The artist uses a form of microscopic realism in still lifes. The figures of the painting become intense and repulsive but definitely effective studies in showing the horrible disintegration of man and his environment.

In the 1930's a number of sculptors were emerging, some of whom were destined to change the face of sculpture at the end of World War II. One of the styles to come out of this period was constructivism, a form of art where the artist would take a number of different, unrelated objects and butt them together on a canvas or in a free standing form.

The architecture of the 1930's fell into the international form. Here the artist has gotten completely away from the Greek and Roman and developed a style that is completely geometric in nature. The utilitarian function of the structure is foremost in the eye of the architect. The simple use of the rectangle, cylinder, and square with little or no exterior ornamentation is the rule as can be seen in the modern skyscrapers.

EUROPE BETWEEN THE WARS

In the years of the early twentieth century were marked by the architectural designs of Frank Lloyd Wright. In his early days much of his architecture was influenced by the Greek and Egyptian. Wright's basic philosophy of architecture was expressed through the house. His ideas involved the use of open free-flowing plan of the English architects. The characteristically American feature of the veranda wrapping itself around two sides of the house allowed the sense of outside space that penetrated to the main living area. Wright's "Prairie Style" design is characterized by low ceilings, frequently pitched at unorthodox angles, a cavelike sense of intimacy and security, and constantly changing vistas of one space flowing into another.

The painting of the period developed into two basic styles, that of the surrealist and the abstractionist, the surreal is a form of art that developed out of the exploration of the human mind and psychoanalysis. The dream state is the realm of the surreal, paintings that were created to have an almost ominous effect. The abstract takes in many paintings of the period that fall under this umbrella word. The paintings will have only intrinsic forms with little or no attempt at pictorial representation.

NUCLEAR

From the 1950's on can be described as an anything goes period in art. No one style or order stands out as did in past periods. Here will be discussed artists and not periods.

One of the sculptors of modern art of note is Alexander Calder. His early form of sculpture was called constructed space sculpture. These early abstract sculptures had a predominantly austere, geometric forms of technical ingenuity and playful humor. At one time a friend called these forms "Stabiles." Thus was born the word, which technically might apply to any sculpture that does not move. Calder also made use of the mobile. This is a sculpture where the artist has shapes balancing at the end of a bent rod suspended on strings or wires and all will move slowly in the breeze. Another sculptor of importance is Henry Moore who works on a monumental order. He has taken the human form and reduced it to a more of an organic form. His sculpture is meant to fit into the environment in which it is placed and not take away from it.

Of the painters of this period, Jackson Pollock is one of the best examples of large paintings called abstract expressionism or non-representational. His painting is created by pouring and spattering his colors, instead of applying them with the brush.

Pop art was given its greatest impetus in the United States during the 1960's. This was an art that most American artists had an appeal coming from the most blatant industrial and commercial environment. Many of the images used come from American motion pictures, popular idols, comics, and signboards. Andy Warhol used drew from standard supermarket products--coca cola bottles, Campbell's soup cans and folk heroes Elvis Presley, and Marilyn Monroe.

ORIGINS OF MUSIC

In Greek mythology, music began when Hermes found a tortoise shell with dried sheds of sinew stretched so that a musical sound could be made by plucking. Apollo created the lyre based on this discovery; thus, the Greeks attributed music to gods associated with light, enlightenment, and wisdom. The Indian belief attributes Narada, goddess of learning, with the discovery of music. The Egyptians credited the lyre to Thot, a god of wisdom. Because of these and similar myths in other cultures, we know that music occupied a very important and an honored place in most ancient civilizations as part of religious ritual, poetry, and drama. In addition, music accompanied men to battle, was used on state ceremonial occasions, and created serenity in the home.

ANCIENT MUSIC

Very little ancient music has survived because it was not written, but it was apparently an art of improvisation with detailed rules concerning rhythm and melody. In prehistoric times, two of the basic musical elements, rhythm and melody, existed. The third element, harmony, is much more recent. Evidently, all people have danced and sung, or grunted, rhythmically. Cave paintings, for example, show people dancing. Drums, cymbals, and simple zithers or dulcimers are over 9,000 years old. Egyptian art of about 3000 B.C. depicts instrumentalists with singers and dancers. Numerous works of Oriental art show groups of dancers and musicians. Indian music with its ethical values seems to have changed little in purpose or sound in many centuries.

Music was extremely important to the Hebrews as we can see from hundreds of references in the Old Testament to such instruments as cymbals, the psaltery, the shofar (ram's horn), and the harp. In the reign of King David, there were about 4,000 professional musicians among the Levites. Hebrew scales were organized into set patterns with each mode carrying a strong ethical interpretation. The single melodic line was unharmonized in all ancient music. As in the medieval Catholic Church, certain modes were specified for certain times of day and for certain purposes.

In the life of the Classical Greeks, music was pervasive. Both Plato and Aristotle discuss the role of music in an enlightened world with some kinds of melody being preferred to others. In the doctrine of ethos, some melodies benefitted character and others were destructive. Music was considered an important part of the education of young Greeks, and it was part of lyric poetry (the lyre) and the drama.

The Romans borrowed much of Greek culture, including music, but the ethical significance of music seems to have faded. Music was mainly used for entertainment and for military purposes. Brass instruments were developed for these military uses.

MUSIC OF EARLY CHRISTIANITY

Very early Christian music was quite similar to that of the Jews. Through several centuries, Christian music diverged from its source by embracing ideas from other cultures. In Byzantium or Constantinople, church music acquired some of the richness of expression of Persian and Indian music. In Western Europe, music developed along simpler lines. Bishop Ambrose of Milan in the fourth century compiled a collection of texts and melodies called Ambrosian chant which often included antiphonal singing (one choir or a lead singer, cantor, was answered by another choir or the congregation). Pope Gregory the Great in the late sixth century ordered the compilation and composing of church music (plainsong) for the entire Christian year which became known as Gregorian chant. These chants are still used today in many Christian churches. The eight major modes, or scale patterns, are based on Greek musical theory and have such names as Dorian, Lydian, and Aeolian. Ralph Vaughan Williams' Fantasia on a Theme by Thomas Tallis is a modern work based on Gregorian modal music.

THE ROMANESQUE ERA

Before about 1000 A.D., music in the Western World and in the Orient consisted of free melodic line; but from 1000 A.D. to the present, Western music has undergone amazing changes and development. Apparently, someone decided at some time around 1000 A.D. that the single melodic line of a chant would be improved by adding another line to be sung at the same time. This new concept, counterpoint, was at least as important in music as splitting the atom was in science. The first counterpoints during the Romanesque period were very simple. They simply followed the chant line exactly at intervals of a fourth (C to F) or a fifth (C to G) because these were the only intervals believed to be harmonious by Pythagoras centuries before. In the late eleventh and twelfth centuries, the contrapuntal line became more complicated and was liberated rhythmically and melodically from the primary line. Like other arts of the time, Romanesque music sought to expand and became increasingly complex.

THE GOTHIC AGE

About 1150 A.D., the Gothic style of architecture and art began in the Paris area and spread through Europe in a century. Characteristics of the Gothic style include intricacy, lightness, complexity, delicacy, fantasy, luxuriance, and expressiveness. In this age of chivalry, art and music of a nonsacred character gained in importance. The earliest secular music we know of was inspired by chivalric poetry and was sung by troubadours. Dramas about familiar Bible stories with characters singing melodic lines were performed in town squares. Both in and out of the church, a humanizing trend had begun. By the middle of the thirteenth century, the motet added new texts as well as music. Each line of melody might be sung to a different text; for example, a Latin religious poem, a French love poem, and a political commentary might be sung simultaneously. Thus, a musical structure which was polyphonic, polyrhythmic, and polytextual was created.

One country developed a distinctive musical style--England. By 1200 A.D., the English had accepted the musical interval of the third (C to E) which is the basis for most of modern harmony but which had been declared a dissonance by Pythagoras' idea of ratios; Sumer is icumen in of about 1240 is the best known surviving English music of this time. It is a canon or round in praise of summer and the song of the cuckoo, and it is about 100 years before its time in musical style.

Musical instruments of the medieval period included the organ, widely used in church; brass and wind instruments; stringed instruments, such as the lute and psaltery; drums; and primitive forms of the bagpipe. By the end of the Middle Ages, composers, writers, and painters are beginning to show greater awareness of the world about them. Art has begun to reflect life.

RENAISSANCE AND REFORMATION

Although the Gothic style continued to hold sway in Northern Europe where it had begun, a new style was beginning in Italy in the fourteenth century, a style which concentrated much of its interest on man's life on earth. This humanistic movement is called the Renaissance. The visual arts, however, showed greater creativity than did music in much of the fourteenth and fifteenth centuries. Although secular music flourished, settings of the Roman Mass were the major musical form of the Renaissance. It is interesting to note that Oxford University instituted degrees in music in 1499.

Sixteenth-century Europe saw rapid changes in musical development. Martin Luther wanted the congregation drawn into active participation in the church service, and he made the chorale or hymn a part of the liturgy. One of his most famous chorales is "A Mighty Fortress Is Our God." John Calvin banished the Latin Mass and returned to the ideals of the early Christians in singing Psalms to God. Composers soon set to music the rhymed French translations of the Huguenot (French Calvinists) Psalter. Thus, the Reformation exerted a powerful influence on music; yet Italy became the center of the musical world in the sixteenth century although many of the musical leaders in Italy were from Northern Europe. The Roman Church was the prime influence, but it was complemented by the great noble palaces with their private chapels. Venice, though, in painting and in music became the center of innovation. The works of Andrea and Giovanni Gabrieli represent some of the finest achievements of Venetian music. One of the greatest composers of the High Renaissance was Giovanni da Palestrina whose settings of the Roman Mass are still sung today and who exerted a powerful influence on the development of musical settings of the Mass.

In sixteenth-century France, many composers wrote chansons, artistic popular songs. Dancing was quite popular throughout the Renaissance, but now dance music emerged as an important art form. Another important element in music of this time is that the mystical quality in the church music of such leading Spanish composers as Tomas Luis de Victoria is often compared to the religious paintings of El Greco.

The madrigal, an important and popular musical form, developed in Italy about 1550. A very personal secular song, often about love, which is polyphonic in nature, it became the elegant home entertainment of cultivated Italians. The madrigal also became a significant and long-lasting part of the musical scene in England. Early English madrigals were copies of the Italian, but English composers soon developed a much lighter madrigal than the Italian. Madrigals were popular, for example, in colonial Williamsburg, Virginia.

THE BAROQUE (1600-1750)

At the very beginning of the Baroque Era, one of the most important of all musical forms was created--the opera. Based on ideas about Greek tragedy and using a Greek myth as his subject, Claudio Monteverdi wrote L'Orfeo (Orpheus), which was produced in 1607. Opera brought a new type of dramatic power and grandeur to music, and it soon became a popular craze in Italy. Venice opened the first public opera house in 1637. Monteverdi wrote four operas for Venetian theaters, which numbered 16 before the end of the century.

This new kind of dramatic power in music became part of sacred music in the oratorio, which developed in Rome as a sort of sacred counterpart to opera. Oratorio was performed in the church oratory, had a biblical or moral subject, and resembled an unstaged opera.

Important composers of the first part of the Baroque Period include Girolamo Frescobaldi, the organist at St. Peter's from 1608-1643; Heinrich Schutz, admirer of Monteverdi and the first major German baroque composer, who wrote religious works for the Lutheran Church; Jean Baptist Lully, Italian-born creator of the French operatic style and court composer to Louis XIV; Michel de Lalande and Marc Antoine Charpentier, composers for the French royal chapels; and Henry Purcell, who was the greatest English baroque composer and choirmaster at the Chapel Royal, who had visited Italy, and who wrote both religious and secular works, including the short opera Dido and Aeneas.

Two other baroque composers who should be mentioned are Jean-Joseph Mouret (1682-1738) whose Sinfonies de Fanfares includes the "Rondeau" which is used as the "Masterpiece Theater" theme and Johann Pachelbel (1653-1706) whose celebrated "Canon" is used in many television commercials and has achieved great popularity.

In 1685, the two giants of baroque music--Johann Sebastian Bach and George Frederick Handel (the English form of his name)--as well as Domenico Scarlatti, a major composer of virtuoso music for the harpsichord, were born. Scarlatti, son of Neopolitan opera composer Alessandro Scarlatti, was a composer to the Spanish court for most of his life. Among those influencing his work was Antonio Vivaldi, the leading composer-violinist in Italy at the beginning of the eighteenth century. One of Vivaldi's best-known works is The Four Seasons, a set of four concertos which call for solo violins to imitate nature's sounds. George Phillip Telemann, a prolific German composer, wrote in the style of Vivaldi.

The supreme genius of the Italian manner in baroque music was George Frederick Handel, a German who visited Italy in his early career, then permanently settled in England in 1712. Handel composed the finest examples of Italian opera (Neapolitan style) and made it wildly popular in England. Among the best known today of his more than 30 operas are Julius Caesar and Alcina. With the decline in popularity of Italian opera (partly caused by John Gay's The Beggar's Opera which satirized Italian opera), Handel turned to the oratorio and brought it to its highest development. The most famous of all oratorios is Messiah with its magnificent "Hallelujah Chorus." Handel, like Bach, was a virtuoso organist who wrote much instrumental and orchestral music. Such works as The Water Music and Music for the Royal Fireworks are widely played today. One particularly lovely composition is the Ode for St. Cecilia's Day, a choral setting of John Dryden's poem. When Handel died in London in 1759, 3,000 persons attended his funeral at Westminster Abbey. He is buried in the Abbey among many of England's greatest artists and writers.

Johann Sebastian Bach was born and lived all his life in Thuringia in Germany, yet he embodies in his music all the diverse artistic ideals and currents of the Northern baroque, and he was familiar with both Italian and French music. He was a virtuoso organist and an extremely prolific composer who left over 200 works for the organ alone. Bach was primarily a composer in the service of the Lutheran Church, and the Lutheran chorale was central to his musical thought. It is the basis for more than 200 cantatas (a kind of short oratorio). Among Bach's best-known works are "Jesu, Joy of Man's Desiring"; the six Brandenburg Concertos; the St. Matthew Passion, a musical setting of the last days of Christ on earth according to St. Matthew; the soaring and majestic B-Minor Mass; the "Air for the G-String"; the "Tocatta and Fugue in D Minor"; The Well-Tempered Clavier, a collection of 48 preludes and fugues for the clavier (i.e., for the keyboard).

Bach's death in 1750 is arbitrarily chosen as the date for the end of the Baroque Period; but the musical times were already changing, even in the works of three of Bach's sons who were famous musicians of their day.

THE CLASSICAL AGE (1750-1820)

A major revolution in music took place about 1750 because music became much more public and more prestigious relative to the other arts. Composers became free agents who could move from one wealthy patron to another or could themselves sell tickets to public performances. Performers travelled widely; orchestras existed all over Europe; and many municipal opera companies were formed.

Classicism in music exhibits the classical (Greek and Roman) virtues of balance, beautiful form, order, and restraint. It grew out of the rococo, a kind of superficial, overdecorated, delicate style which developed in the eighteenth century. The harpsichord works of François Couperin and the operas and other works of Jean Philippe Rameau are representative of the rococo. The profuse ornamentation of the rococo caused a quick reaction toward stark simplicity which in architecture, painting, and even in pottery and porcelain surged toward classicism. One unexpected source of neoclassicism was the popular mania for some elements of Eastern art caused by the increased trade between Europe and the Orient. In its serenity, oriental art mirrored the classical ideals. Josiah Wedgwood's vases and plates used Greco-Roman shapes and ornaments with blue and white and other oriental color schemes.

One of the first great classical composers was Christoph Gluck who was noted for reforming the opera. In 1762 in Vienna, Gluck's Orfeo ed Euridice (Orpheus and Eurydice) was produced. It returned opera to a simplicity of style which was a reaction against the overdecoration of the Italian opera style of the day. Using the simple harmonic style of his day, Gluck reflected in music both the classical architecture and classical subject matter which were fashionable. This first of Gluck's "reform" operas is the oldest opera in the standard repertoire of most modern opera companies.

The orchestra became more important and the pianoforte (it could play both soft [piano] and loud [forte], now just called the piano, came into prominence. Two great musical forms also became very important--the symphony and the concerto.

Franz Joseph Haydn brought a sense of dramatic urgency to the symphony and related musical forms. He is often referred to as the "Father of the Symphony" and the "Father of the String Quartet." Haydn was a very prolific composer who wrote more than 100 symphonies and many quartets, masses, and compositions for the keyboard. He also composed two magnificent oratorios, The Creation and The Seasons. Recommended listening should include the "Surprise" Symphony, the London Symphony (No. 104 in D Major), the Kaiserquartett (Emperor's Quartet), and The Creation.

Wolfgang Amadeus Mozart, a child prodigy, was giving concerts and composing before the age of 10. Although his tragically short life ended as a pauper at the age of 35, Mozart wrote enduring masterpieces in several musical forms. The Piano Concerto No. 21 in C contains the sublime theme in the second movement which is known as the "Elvira Madigan Theme" because of its use in that movie. Mozart's best-known operas are The Marriage of Figaro, Don Giovanni, and The Magic Flute. His masses include the Coronation Mass in C and the unfinished Requiem. The Symphonies Numbers 39 in E-flat, 40 in G minor, and 41 in C ("The Jupiter") are usually considered Mozart's greatest.

Ludwig van Beethoven, one of the greatest composers of all time, is usually considered to span the transition from classicism to romanticism in music. Until about 1802, Beethoven's music reflects the influence of Haydn. The middle period up to about 1816 reveals greater subjectivity, sharper contrasts, and some descriptive elements. The final period in Beethoven's music shows introspective moods, impulsiveness, great range of expression, and an expansion of musical forms.

Beethoven's Third Symphony, "The Eroica (Heroic)," is one of the most significant forward steps in the history of music. It is twice the length of any previous symphony; and its use of dissonance, a funeral march in the second movement, and the heroic concept itself marked an important change in music. The Fifth Symphony is perhaps the best known of all the nine symphonies, containing, as it does in the opening notes, the "V for Victory" theme of the Allies in World War II. The Sixth Symphony (the "Pastoral") is a descriptive work which exhibits the romantic characteristics of love of nature and of rural life and the common people. The great Ninth Symphony (the "Choral") uses soloists and chorus in the final movement to present a musical setting of Schiller's "Ode to Joy," which is a hymn to human brotherhood.

Among Beethoven's 32 piano sonatas, three of the best known are the "Moonlight," the "Appassionata," and the "Waldstein." His one opera was Fidelio, and the Missa Solemnis in D is a magnificent setting of the Mass. Beethoven wrote some memorable chamber music and the "Egmont" overture. Also, his violin concerto and the Fourth and Fifth (The "Emperor") Piano Concertos are world famous.

THE ROMANTIC PERIOD (1820-1900)

Important characteristics of the Romantic Movement included subjectivity, emotionalism, individualism, nationalism, and the search for new subject matter such as the ancient, the supernatural, and the mystic. Significant development took place in many areas of music in the Nineteenth Century, and a partial listing of some of the most important composers and their works in each area follows.

Italian Opera

Gioacchino Rossini - The Barber of Seville

Vincenzo Bellini - Norma

Gaetano Donizetti - Lucia di Lammermoor

Giuseppe Verdi - Rigoletto, Il Trovatore, La Traviata, Aida, Otello, and the Requiem Mass and Hymn to the Nations

Giacomo Puccini - La Boheme, Madame Butterfly, Tosca

French Opera

Giacomo Meyerbeer - Les Huguenots, Le Prophete
Charles Gounod - Faust
Georges Bizet - Carmen
Jules Massenet - Manon, Thais
Camille Saint-Saens - Samson and Dalila

German Opera

Carl Maria von Weber - Der Freischutz
Richard Wagner - Tannhauser, Lohengrin, Die Meistersinger, Parsifal, The Ring of the Nibelungs (a cycle of four operas)
Engelbert Humperdinck - Hansel and Gretel

English Opera

Gilbert and Sullivan - H.M.S. Pinafore, The Pirates of Penzance, The Mikado (these are comic operas or operettas)

ORCHESTRAL AND INSTRUMENTAL MUSIC

Franz Schubert - Impromptus, Opus 90 and Opus 142; Symphony No. 8 in B Minor (Unfinished); The "Great" Symphony in C Major

Robert Schumann - Piano Concerto in A Minor, Symphony No. 1 in B-flat Major "Spring," Symphony No. 2 in C Major, Symphony No. 3 in E-flat Major "Rhenish," "Traumerei"

Felix Mendelssohn - "Songs Without Words," Symphony No. 4 in A "Italian," Symphony No. 5 in D Minor "Reformation"

Frederic Chopin - "Revolutionary" Etude and others, Mazurkas, Waltzes, and Nocturnes. Particularly lovely are the Four Impromptus and the Fantasie-Impromptu. The Polonaise No. 3 in A "Military" and the Polonaise No. 6 in A Flat "Heroic" are especially well known.

Franz Liszt - Hungarian Rhapsodies Nos. 1 and 2, "Liebestraum," "Mephisto Waltz," and "Funerailles"

Johannes Brahms - Violin Concerto in D Major, Piano Concerto No.2, Intermezzi for Piano, Symphony No. 1, Piano Quintet in F Minor, "Academic Festival" Overture, A German Requiem, Hungarian Dances

Edvard Grieg - Piano Concerto in A Minor, "Peer Gynt Suite"

Sergei Rachmaninoff - Symphony No. 2, Piano Concerto No. 2, Rhapsody on a Theme of Paganini

Camille Saint-Saens - Symphony No. 3 "The Organ Symphony," Piano Concerto No. 4, Carnival of the Animals

Jan Sibelius - "Finlandia," Symphony No. 2 in D, Symphony No. 5 in E-flat Major

Hector Berlioz - "Symphonie Fantastique," Requiem Mass

Bedrich Smetana - The Bartered Bride (an opera), Ma Vlast ("My Country," a tone poem)

Antonin Dvorak - Symphony from the New World, Cello Concerto

Modest Mussorgsky - Boris Godounov (an opera), Pictures at an Exhibition (a piano suite. Compare piano and orchestral versions with the contemporary version by Emerson, Lake, and Palmer).

Nikolai Rimsky-Korsakov - "Russian Easter" Overture, Scheherezade (symphonic suite based on The Arabian Nights)

Peter Ilich Tchaikovsky - "March Slav," "The 1812 Overture," Swan Lake, The Nutcracker, Sleeping Beauty, Piano Concerto No. 1, Symphony No. 5, Symphony No. 6

Johann Strauss, Jr. - "The Blue Danube" and "Emperor" Waltzes

Stephen Foster - Such songs as "Jennie with the Light Brown Hair," "My Old Kentucky Home," "Oh, Susanna," and "Camptown Races"

Edward MacDowell - Second Piano Concerto, Woodland Sketches ("To a Wild Rose," "To a Water Lily," and "From an Indian Lodge")

Louis Moreau Gottschalk - assign a report on his life and career.

John Phillip Sousa - "Stars and Stripes Forever" and other marches

THE TWENTIETH CENTURY

The modern period in music is a revolutionary one. So many musical styles or forms developed that it may be said that modernism is any significant departure from common music practices of the preceding period. Some of the important musical styles, composers, and their works follow.

Late or Neoromanticism

Richard Strauss - Salome, Der Rosenkavalier (Operas), Also Sprach Zarathustra, the Four Last Songs

Anton Bruckner - Symphony No. 4 "Romantic"

Justav Mahler - Symphony No. 8, Symphony No. 2 "Resurrection," Symphony No. 4 in G Major

Sir Edward Elgar - Pomp and Circumstance Marches No. 1 and No. 4

Impressionism

Claude Debussy - Prelude to the Afternoon of a Faun, La Mer, "Claire de Lune"

Maurice Ravel - Daphnis and Chloe, "Bolero"

Other Important Composers

Arnold Schoenberg - Quintet for Winds; Five Pieces for Orchestra, Op. 16

Bela Bartok - Concerto for Orchestra

Igor Stravinsky - Firebird, Petrouchka, The Rite of Spring

Sergei Prokofiev - Classical Symphony in D Major, "The Love for Three Oranges" Symphonic Suite, Alexander Nevsky, "Peter and the Wolf"

Dimitri Shostakovich - Symphony No. 5

Allan Berg - Wozzeck

Carl Orff - Carmina Burana

Benjamin Britten - Ceremony of Carols, A War Requiem

Gian-Carlo Menotti - The Medium, Amahl and the Night Visitors

American Composers

George Gershwin - Porgy and Bess (Opera), Rhapsody in Blue, An American in Paris

Charles Ives - Symphony No. 4

Samuel Barber - "Adagio for Strings"

Aaron Copland - Appalachian Spring, "Fanfare for the Common Man," A Lincoln Portrait, Rodeo

Ferde Grofe - Grand Canyon Suite

Morton Gould - Spirituals for Orchestra

Roy Harris - Symphony No. 4 "Folk Song Symphony"

Kurt Weill - The Three Penny Opera, Down in the Valley

Leonard Bernstein - "Overture to Candide," Symphony No. 1 "Jeremiah Symphony," Symphony No. 2 "The Age of Anxiety"

American Popular Music

Scott Joplin - "Maple Leaf Rag"

W. C. Handy - "St. Louis Blues"

George M. Cohan - "You're a Grand Old Flag," "I'm a Yankee Doodle Dandy," "Give My Regards to Broadway," "Over There"

Irving Berlin - "White Christmas," "God Bless America," "Alexander's Ragtime Band," "Easter Parade"

552

Victor Herbert - Babes in Toyland, Naughty Marietta

Sigmund Romberg - The Student Prince, The Desert Song

Jerome Kern - Show Boat

"Hoagy" Carmichael - "Star Dust," "Georgia on My Mind," "Lazy River"

Leonard Bernstein - On the Town, West Side Story

Richard Rodgers and Oscar Hammerstein II - Oklahoma, Carousel, South Pacific, The King and I, The Sound of Music

Cole Porter - "Begin the Beguine," "Night and Day," Kiss Me, Kate

Harold Arlen - "Somewhere Over the Rainbow," "That Old Black Magic"

Alan J. Lerner and Frederick Loewe - Brigadoon, My Fair Lady

Students should listen to some examples of the Big Band Sound of the Swing Era by such famous bands as those of Count Basie, Benny Goodman, Louis Armstrong, Duke Ellington, Guy Lombardo, Tommy Dorsey, Woody Herman, Glen Miller, and Harry James.

Students should be familiar with examples of the music and dance of the 1920's and 1930's and of such musical styles or types as Rock and Roll, Bluegrass, Country and Western, etc. Very influential artists or groups such as Elvis Presley and the Beatles should be included.

An interesting study of the effect of war on music can be made by comparing popular songs in each of America's wars, from "Yankee Doodle" in the American Revolution to "The Ballad of the Green Berets" in the Vietnam War.

SAMPLE UNIT

WORLD HISTORY

I. Overview: The purpose of this unit is to identify the various causes of the Second World War, especially the role of Nazi Germany. Events preceding the war, the Axis Alliance, various acts of aggression, and the major events of the war with the Allies will be described and discussed. The purpose of the unit will be to demonstrate that World War II was the result of multiple causes, including profound differences in political ideologies.

II. Objectives:

- A. Generalization: The motivating factors in human achievement have been either ideological or materialistic.
- B. Concepts: Time perspective and chronology, historiography
- C. Skills:
 - 1. Reading social studies materials with comprehension
 - 2. Applying critical thinking skills
 - 3. Understanding chronology
 - 4. Evaluating information
 - 5. Interpreting graphic materials

III. Procedures:

- A. Complete pre-reading activities (Structured overview; pre-reading questions; study guides with follow-up activities)
- B. Review content:
- C. Axis Aggression
 - 1. Munich Conference
 - 2. Acts of aggression
 - 3. Axis alliance: Rome, Berlin, Tokyo
 - 4. Nonaggression pact with Soviets
- D. Full-scale warfare
- E. Occupation of Europe
- F. Liberation of Europe
- G. Allied Conference

Objective: The student will be able to identify major events of World War II.

Activities: Make a chronological time line of the major events of World War II. Take one section of the line and detail it with these elements: Major events, date(s), personalities involved, significance of event, and source documents with information about the event(s).

IV. Evaluation:

While philosophical positions regarding evaluation of student achievement may differ, most educators recognize the significant impact of evaluation on students and its importance to the entire educational process. Evaluation of instructional progress involves a complex set of skills. If not performed properly, evaluation can lead to abuses.

The purpose of this section is to provide information on the evaluation of student progress and to cite examples of various kinds of evaluations.

The use of pre- and post-tests has gained support in recent years. The pre-test is administered before a new unit of study or at the beginning of a course to assess student needs and prior knowledge of the material to be studied. The teacher uses the results to adjust the objectives and the activities in the unit to compensate for student needs.

The post-test is administered at the end of the unit or course to measure progress and achievement. The results are useful in determining mastery of the skills and concepts required and in diagnosing any necessary remediation. It is hoped that the teacher will use the goals and objectives set forth in this guide to develop sets of pre- and post-tests to be administered with each unit of study.

Tests should be carefully constructed so that the kind of test and the items on the test measure the students' mastery of what has been taught. Tests and test items should be varied to measure all levels of learning, from the specific to the more complex and abstract. Students should be provided experience in taking both essay and objective tests. Objective test items should be varied to include multiple choice, fill-in-the-blank, matching, rearrangement, and alternative response.

Evaluation should not be limited to paper and pencil tests. Assigning a student a grade based solely upon test scores leaves a great deal of that student's abilities and talents untapped. Other important techniques to be included in evaluating student achievement and progress are observation of general class participation, group and individual oral reports, written assignments, creative assignments, and participation in activities such as role playing and simulations.

It is important to keep in mind that evaluation should measure what has been taught to determine if a child has met the objectives specified by the teacher. When grades are being determined, consideration should be given to test scores as well as other methods of evaluation. Student grades should reflect the extent of student mastery and should be justifiable. The meaning of the grade should be communicated in some way to both the student and the parents.

Tests are an important part of evaluation. However, other means such as observation of students are also important in producing evidence which can be studied and analyzed by teachers in evaluating the growth of pupils.

Below are listed a few basic rules of test-making:

1. Have a clear and concise purpose in mind for the test.
2. Plan carefully for the test questions.
3. Make the test parallel the work in class.
4. Test what you teach.

EVALUATIVE TECHNIQUES

501

302

Evaluative Techniques

The purpose of evaluation in the social studies program is to improve curriculum, instruction, and learning. Each program and course should have an overall evaluative design encompassing the full array of goals and objectives. Evaluation requires more than testing, marking papers, and filling out report cards. The design, for instance, may include plans for evaluation of a textbook, a film, an activity, or even an item on an examination. In addition, some important evaluative information about affective development or side effects of classroom activities may be inappropriate for use in grading pupils but crucial to improving instruction. Instruments and procedures for use in evaluation include observation checklists, rating scales, and questionnaires. There is also a wide variety of examination forms and types of questions from which one may choose.

Any major change in courses and programs should be accompanied by corresponding changes in the evaluative design. As the study and thinking habits of students are to some extent geared to the testing and reporting methods used by the teacher, the design of examinations and choice of test items should be as deliberately chosen as teaching methods and materials. It is extraordinarily difficult to keep students vitally involved in considerations of contemporary affairs, observations of relationships, and empathetic caring about other persons and civic decision making when they are anticipating immediate success or failure to depend upon ability to recall huge quantities of details on an examination. Clearly, there needs to be an alignment of objectives, content, teaching methods, and testing.

The essay is admirably suited to testing ability to reason, organize, and write effectively. The scoring difficulties may be somewhat ameliorated by describing the nature and scope of responses desired.

Example: In a essay of a page or two discuss the importance of the Nile River on the development of Egyptian agriculture.

Questions requiring short answers tend to be more limited in the depth of responses elicited but expand the scope of the sampling of items that can be included in a single examination.

Example: Identify each of the following terms in a paragraph or less:

1. Pyramid
2. City-State
3. Nationalism
4. Coup
5. Boers

In the evaluation of geographic concepts, the use of "map-correlation" questions is appropriate. With this type of item the pupil has before him a map or maps and questions to be answered. Duplicated, textbook, or other maps may be used.

If there is a clearly thought out overall evaluation design and if a variety of types of instruments and examination items are used, pupils' skills and understanding of the flow of events, of cause and effect relationships, and of the "how" and "why" of social studies materials can be more effectively represented.

The bibliography of this section suggests some references that include many interesting examples of types of examination items for clearly identified objectives. They are of a variety which may serve as a stimulus to the creative potential of social studies teachers and aid in developing tests that measure what is intended with validity and reliability.
