The Child Care and Development Block Grant Amendments Act of 1995 reauthorizes and amends the Child Care and Development Block Grant Act, which was enacted into law on November 5, 1990, as part of the Omnibus Reconciliation Act of 1990. The Child Care and Development Block Grant Act was enacted to provide low-income working families with subsidies for child care and to improve the quality and availability of child care. The Child Care and Development Block Grant Amendments Act of 1995 reauthorizes the 1990 law with several important changes. This legislation provides States with funding for child care subsidies and activities to improve the quality and availability of child care through a consolidated child care program.

I. SUMMARY OF THE BILL

A. PURPOSE

The Child Care and Development Block Grant Amendments Act of 1995 reauthorizes and amends the Child Care and Development Block Grant Act of 1990, which was originally enacted to provide low-income working families with assistance for child care services and to improve the quality and availability of child care. The purpose of this legislation is to make improvements to the 1990 law by: (1) giving States greater flexibility in designing their child care system; (2) providing greater emphasis on parental choice; (3) consolidating Federal discretionary child care programs and other child care funding into one seamless system of child care services; and (4) removing barriers to providing child care for Indian tribes. This legislation provides States with funding for child care subsidies and activities to improve the quality and availability of child care through a consolidated child care program.

B. AUTHORIZATION

The Child Care and Development Block Grant (CCDBG) is amended to include two discretionary programs, the State Dependent Care Planning and Development Grants and the Child Development Associate Credential (CDA) Scholarships, into a discretionary block grant with no State match required. This is consistent with the current CCDBG structure. The authorization for fiscal year 1996 is $1,000,000,000 and such sums as necessary through the year 2000.

C. STATE REQUIREMENTS

1. The health and safety standards included in the CCDBG when it was enacted in 1990, are maintained. These standards are broadly defined, and States continue to have broad discretion in enforcing them. The standards are: (1) the prevention and control of infectious diseases; (2) building and physical premises safety; and (3) minimum health and safety training appropriate to the provider setting. Providers receiving funds from the block grant (via contract or parent voucher) must meet any existing State and local licensing and regulatory requirements.

2. The quality set-aside, which is part of the 1990 act, is maintained. However, it is more broadly defined and gives States discretion in how they choose to spend the money. The only required quality activity is that States must provide consumer education to encourage maximum parental choice and improve availability of child care through a comprehensive referral and resource system. The set-aside is 15 percent of the State allotment.

3. States are required to submit a plan, similar to what they currently provide under the CCDBG, which designates a lead agency and outlines procedures for assuring parental choice of providers, parental complaints, consumer education, and compliance with State and local licensing and health and safety requirements.

4. States are required to submit a report to the Secretary of Health and Human Services (HHS) every 2 years specifying how they used the money, the number of children who were assisted, activities that were implemented to encourage a public-private partnership, and the extent and manner in which they implemented a resource and referral network.

5. States are required to establish a sliding fee scale that ensures a representative distribution of participation among low-income working families and welfare recipients.

6. States may not expend more than 5 percent on administrative costs.

7. If States expend monies for child care from other Federal funding sources, then this funding will be distributed through the State system established under the CCDBG. This will reduce Federal regulations and requirements by establishing one consolidated child care program. This will also provide beneficiaries with more stability in child care since eligibility requirements will be streamlined.

D. ENFORCEMENT MECHANISMS

If a State is determined (via the HHS appeals and hearing process) to have improperly expended the block grant funds, the Secretary is given the option of: (1) imposing additional requirements to ensure State compliance or correct areas of noncompliance with the act; (2) require States to repay funds improperly expended; (3) deduct from the administrative portion of the State allotment an amount less than or equal to the improperly expended funds; (4) or a combination of these options.

E. INDIAN TRIBES

The following provisions have been added for Indian tribes: (1) allowing tribes to use funds for facilities construction if the Secretary of HHS determines that this is a barrier to providing child care (this applies only to Indian tribes); (2) allowing any tribal allotments that are not expended to be redistributed to other tribes, which is similar to the provisions governing unused State allotments; and (3) exempting tribes from State licensing requirements and allowing the Secretary, in consultation with the tribes, to develop minimum standards for child care providers that takes into account tribes' needs and available resources. The set-aside for Indiana tribes of "up to 3 percent" remains unchanged from the 1990 law.

F. PROGRAMS TO BE CONSOLIDATED

Child care and development block grant

Discretionary grant program to help low-income parents pay for child care, to expand early childhood development programs to improve the availability and quality of care. No State match is required. For fiscal year 1995, $935 million was appropriated.

State dependent care planning and development grants

Discretionary grant program for child care resource and referral and for before- and after-school child care services. Provides a 75 percent Federal matching rate to States. For fiscal year 1995, $13 million was appropriated.

Child development associate credential (CDA) scholarships

Discretionary grant program to States to provide scholarships to qualified child care workers to cover the cost of the CDA application, assessment, and credentialing. This credential is awarded by the Council for Early Childhood Professional Recognition. No State match is required. For fiscal year 1995, $1 million was appropriated.

II. BACKGROUND AND NEED FOR LEGISLATION

Dependable, high-quality child care is a universal need among working parents. However, not all working parents have access to such care because it is either not available, or not affordable. The search for reliable, acceptable child care can be particularly difficult for working parents with limited resources, and for parents who are dependent on welfare yet are trying to become self-sufficient through work or training. According to a 1994 General Accounting Office (GAO) report, affordable child care is a "decisive" factor affecting the likelihood of low-income mothers to work. The GAO predicted that child care subsidies would dramatically increase the number of poor who would work by 52 percent.

Federal leadership is crucial to support the availability of quality child care services, particularly in the context of welfare reform and consideration of proposals that could significantly increase the participation of low-income parents in the work force. If State and Federal welfare reform initiatives are to be successful, child care services must be available for those struggling to earn their way off welfare, and for low-income working families who could become dependent on welfare in the absence of affordable child care.

In 1988 and 1990, Congress recognized the need for affordable, quality child care for low-income families, and elevated the Federal role in child care by enacting four programs to subsidize services for various categories of low-income families, ranging from welfare recipients required to participate in education and training activities to non-welfare working families with low incomes. Although these programs have allowed many families to work and remain self-sufficient, they have resulted in a bureaucratic maze that is difficult for States to administer and often results in disrupted services for children as the economic circumstances and program participation of their parents change. Moreover, subsidized child care programs still serve only a small part of the eligible population and waiting lists for services exist in almost all States. The GAO found in 1994 that many States use funds intended for the working poor for families on AFDC and that 5 of 6 states they visited maintained waiting lists for subsidies—40,000 long in Texas.

HISTORY OF CURRENT CHILD CARE PROGRAMS

The Family Support Act of 1988 (P.L. 100-485) amended Aid to Families with Dependent Children (AFDC) to require States to "guarantee" child care services for welfare recipients who are required to participate in education, training, or work activities. This provision was based on the concept of a mutual obligation; i.e., that the welfare parent had a duty to prepare for work through education and training and that, in return, the welfare agency would provide a cash welfare benefit, training and work activities, and necessary support services such as child care and medical coverage. Prior to enactment of the Family Support Act, Federal law recognized the child care needs of AFDC families only by allowing State agencies to disregard a certain amount of work-related child care expenses from the family's income when calculating eligibility and benefit levels.

In addition to the child care entitlement for AFDC recipients in education or training, the Family Support Act also created a program known as Transitional Child Care. This program requires States to continue to guarantee child care services, for up to 12 months, to families that have lost AFDC eligibility because of increased earnings, but who need child care to remain employed. This program was intended to address the concern that a lack of affordable child care is often a barrier in the process of leaving welfare for work, or for remaining off welfare.

Despite enactment of the Family Support Act in 1988, debate continued in Congress about the availability, affordability, and quality of the Nation's child care services, including the extent to which the child care needs of non-welfare, low-income working families were being met. In 1990, Congress agreed on a child care package that created two new State grant programs: the Child Care and Development Block Grant, and the At-Risk Child Care program. Both programs were included in the Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1990 (P.L. 101-508).

These two programs are self-contained and were developed largely independent of one another; however, they share certain broad policy goals. First, both programs are aimed at improving the availability of child care services for low-income working families. Second, both programs provide flexibility to States in administering and delivering child care services. Third, both programs contain features emphasizing parental choice. And finally, both rely on States, rather than the Federal Government, to regulate child care. Differences between the two programs relate to State administration, payment rates, eligibility, sectarian care, and funding. In addition, the CCDBG differs from the At-Risk and other child care programs by having a portion of funds set aside for activities to improve the quality of child care services.

Together with the three AFDC-related child care programs, the CCDBG has made significant contributions in meeting the child care needs of low-income families. Nevertheless, while the welfare-related child care programs have increased the level of resources available, they also have complicated the design and delivery of child care services due to different eligibility criteria and other requirements. Based on field research conducted in several States, in testimony before the committee in March 1995, the GAO reported that serious service gaps exist as a result of these different requirements. These gaps can interfere with a parent's ability to work or to look for work. In particular, GAO found service gaps resulting from different categorical and income eligibility criteria in the various programs, restrictions in 2 programs on the provision of child care while parents are engaged in job search, and time limits in 1 program on the duration of subsidized child care.

CHILD CARE AND DEVELOPMENT BLOCK GRANT AMENDMENTS OF 1995

The purposes of the Child Care and Development Block Grant Amendments Act of 1995 are to streamline Federal support for child care by combining existing discretionary programs into a single grant to States and to improve and build upon the strengths of the CCDBG. Two small discretionary programs—State Dependent Care Planning and Development Grants and Child Development Associate Scholarship Assistance—will be consolidated into the CCDBG. Under a key feature of the legislation, all Federal funds used by States for child care, regardless of their source, will be governed by a single set of rules and requirements. Using the existing State systems developed to implement the CCDBG in 1990, these rules and regulations are designed to give flexibility to States in administering their child care programs and to assure continuous services to families regardless of changes in their work or welfare status. Use of a sliding fee scale will enable States to serve all low-income working families, including those dependent on welfare, through a single program.

Under the proposal, minimum Federal health and safety standards now required by the CCDBG will be maintained and will apply to all federally funded child care. The proposal addresses the need to improve the quality of available child care services by maintaining a set-aside for quality improvement activities, but giving States greater flexibility in the use of the funds. States will be required to provide comprehensive consumer education information to parents through referral and resource activities that will enhance access to quality child care and honor parental choice. Beyond this requirement, States will have increased discretion in the use of quality improvement funds.

The legislation makes other improvements in the current CCDBG designed to enhance State flexibility and make child care services more responsive to the needs of low-income families. The legislation also includes several important provisions intended to improve the availability of quality child care services for Native American children.

III. LEGISLATIVE HISTORY AND COMMITTEE ACTION

A hearing was held on February 16, 1995, on the Child Care and Development Block Grant in the Committee on Labor and Human Resources' Subcommittee on Children and Families. The Committee on Labor and Human Resources held a hearing on the impact of welfare reform on child care on March 1, 1995.

Senate bill 850 was introduced on May 24, 1995, by Senators Kassebaum, Coats, Jeffords, Kennedy, Dodd, and Inouye and was referred to the Committee on Labor and Human Resources. The Committee on Labor and Human Resources considered S. 850 in an executive session held on Friday, May 26, 1995. No amendments were offered. The bill was adopted by a unanimous roll call vote and reported favorably to the full Senate.

IV. COMMITTEE VIEWS

GENERAL GOALS

The committee has two general goals for this legislation: (1) to consolidate and streamline Federal child care programs into a seamless system of child care services; and (2) to preserve the accessibility and affordability of quality child care for low-income working families as well as families transitioning off welfare assistance.

SECTION 2

Section 2 of the bill makes several amendments to the Child Care and Development Bloc Grant Act of 1990.

Section 2(a)

Section 2(a) authorizes $1 billion for fiscal year 1996 and such sums as may be necessary for each of fiscal years 1997 through 2000. The committee believes that it is important to preserve current Federal funding for child care with potential for growth to account for inflation, particularly as Congress and the States attempt to move more welfare recipients into the workplace.

Section 2(b)

States are given greater discretion in determining the appropriate lead agency (governmental or nongovernmental) to administer the program. This section also requires that States give sufficient notice of public hearings on the development of the State plan. The committee included this provision in order to ensure that all interested parties have an opportunity to participate in the development of the State plan.

Section 2(c)

Section 2(c) includes several amendments. The committee included a provision to replace the requirement that providers not subject to licensing or regulation be registered with the State with a requirement that the State implement mechanisms to ensure proper payment to such providers. The purpose of this is to ensure that such providers are not subject to burdensome requirements. This provision does not exempt these providers' from complying with requirements of this Act, such as the minimum health and safety standards. It is not the intent of this committee to restrict or in any way discourage States from providing information that may be educational or helpful to such providers.

This section also includes an amendment that would require the Secretary of Health and Human Services to develop minimum standards for Indian tribes and tribal organizations in lieu of State licensing requirements. The Secretary is to take into consideration the tribe's needs and available resources. This amendment recognizes that tribes are sovereign and have unique child care needs that need to be addressed appropriately.

The committee has eliminated several requirements for the State plan in order to reduce burdensome requirements on States. The committee has maintained a set-aside for States for use to improve the quality of child care and increase the availability of before- and after-school care, infant care, and after-hours care (child care provided between the hours of 5 p.m. and 8 a.m.). States have been given greater flexibility in the use of these funds. The quality set-aside has been demonstrated to be critical in improving the quality of child care. According to a recent national study of center-based child care, entitled "Cost, Quality, and Child Outcomes" (January 1995), "Child care at most centers in the United States is poor to mediocre, with almost half of the infants and toddlers in rooms having less than minimal quality." As Congress and the States proceed with welfare reform, the demand for child care will increase dramatically as more and more welfare recipients are required to work. Even if Congress makes no changes to the current welfare system, waiting lists for child care already exist in almost every State. If the quality set-aside is not preserved, States will not have funds available to improve the quality of child care.

A cap of 5 percent on administrative costs is included in the act. To help States implement this provision, the committee expects the Department of Health and Human Services to issue regulations, in a timely manner and prior to the deadline for submission of State plans, that define and determine true administrative costs, as distinct from expenditures for services. The committee does not view the following as administrative costs: eligibility determination and redetermination, preparation and participation in judicial hearings, child care placement, management (licensing, inspection, plan development, reviews and supervision), recruitment of child care homes and institutions, rate setting, resource and referral, training, automation and data collection costs. All of the aforementioned are an integral part of service delivery and should not be considered administrative costs.

Section 2(d)

This section maintains the requirement that States implement a sliding fee scale, however, a new provision was added requiring States to ensure that "there is a representative distribution of funding among the working poor and recipients of Federal welfare assistance." The act also requires States to extend the sliding fee scale from its current limit of 75 percent of the State median income to 100 percent of the State median income. The committee included these amendments to ensure that low-income working families would receive subsidies under this act. Due to limited resources and an inability to fund AFDC-JOBS match rates, States have used an increasing amount of funds received under Child Care and Development Block Grant to provide child care for welfare recipients. This has resulted in many low-income working families, who are eligible for subsidies, being placed on a waiting list. In addition, the committee believes that families should make some contribution, where feasible, to cover the costs of child care for their children. This reinforces the shared responsibility between parents and the government. However, the committee believes these funds should be distributed equitably among eligible recipients.

Section 2(e)

This section requires States to use their quality improvement set-aside for referral and resource activities in addition to any of the other allowable activities States choose. The committee intends that this provision will give States greater flexibility in their use of set-aside funds. States will be required to use some portion of their quality improvement funds for resource and referral systems that provide comprehensive consumer education information to parents. However, it is the intent of the committee that States also use part of their set-aside funds for other activities to enhance the quality and availability of child care services. The committee included language which allows States to use funds to increase the availability of before- and after-school care, infant care, and care between the hours of 5 p.m. and 8 a.m. The committee included these as allowable activities under the quality set-aside in recognition of the increasing demand for and scarcity of such care.

This section also includes language that prohibits States from discriminating against providers, who are legally operating in a State, but not required to be regulated by the State, who want to participate in resource and referral systems. Such participation is entirely voluntary on the part of the providers. The committee believes that States should identify such providers as legally operating and unregulated when distributing information to parents and the public.

Section 2(f)

The committee repeals the requirement that States use a portion of the quality set-aside for increasing the availability of before- and after-school care and early child development. These activities, instead, become allowable activities under the quality set-aside. Nothing in this act prohibits States from using funds allocated toward child care subsidies to increase the availability of before- and after-school care and early childhood development activities. The committee would encourage States to use funds for increasing the number and availability of child care providers, if the lack of supply is a barrier to providing child care.

Section 2(g)

The committee eliminates the requirement that the Secretary withhold further payments to a State when a State is found noncompliant until the noncompliance is corrected. The committee chose to strike this provision as it did not want to penalize recipients of child care assistance by withholding payments to States indefinitely. Instead, the committee decided to provide the Secretary with discretion in sanctioning States. The Secretary is given the option of imposing additional requirements on the State, requiring a State to reimburse the Secretary the amount that was improperly expended, deduct from the State's administrative allotment an amount equal to or less than the misspent funds, or any combination of these options. The committee believes it is important that any sanctions should be designed to ensure the States' compliance while limiting the impact of those sanctions on the families dependent upon Federal assistance to meet their child care needs.

Section 2(h)

The committee amends the act to reduce State reporting requirements and to require States to submit reports biennially instead of annually. The committee intends to relieve States of overly burdensome reporting requirements.

Section 2(i)

The committee has amended the act to require the Secretary to report to Congress biennially. This is consistent with the States requirement to submit reports biennially.

Section 2(j)

Indian tribes and tribal organizations are allowed to use funds for construction or renovation of facilities with the approval of the Secretary. This provision is intended to assist tribes that are not able to provide child care services under this act because of the lack of appropriate facilities. Lack of adequate facilities is a barrier to offering child care services that Indian tribes and tribal organizations often face. The other provision under this section gives Indian tribes and tribal organizations the same benefit that States currently receive—the reallocation of unused tribal funds to other tribes or tribal organizations in proportion to the original allotments under this act. Previously, unused tribal funds were returned to the Federal Treasury. This provision ensures that Indian tribes and tribal organizations are provided the opportunity to utilize fully funds set aside for their use.

Section 2(k)

This section adds a provision allowing funds under this act to be used for a deposit if a deposit is ordinarily required by the child care provider. The committee is concerned that many child care providers regularly require parents to pay a deposit before their children are enrolled for services, and that such deposits can be barriers to receiving services for poor families who lack the funds to pay them. The committee intends that this provision will eliminate this barrier by allowing States to use CCDBG funds to pay these deposits when necessary to enable a family to receive child care services.

This section also expands the definition of who can be considered an eligible relative child care provider in order to remove barriers to providing child care services under this act, particularly for Indian tribes and tribal organizations. Added to the definition of relative child care provider are great grandchild and sibling when the sibling lives in a separate residence from the child. These providers will have to comply with any applicable requirements that govern child care provided by a relative, be that State requirements or tribal requirements.

Section 2(l)

This section requires that any Federal funds used by States for child care services must comply with the requirements, standards, and criteria of this act. In addition, these funds will also be subject to any regulations that are promulgated under this act. States must submit a uniform State plan concerning the State's child care system that includes how the State will consolidate Federal funds into one State child care system. The committee does not intend this provision to apply to Federal funds used for children's nutrition programs, such as the Child Care and Adult Food program; for programs that provide comprehensive services to children and families in which child care may be one of the services, such as the Head Start program and the Chapter 1 program; or for programs that provide child care for a specific population, such as the military programs and Native Hawaiian Family Centers. This provision applies to Federal funds allocated to the States that are used to provide child care assistance and are subject to State requirements.

Under current law, States receive Federal funds that are used for child care under several different programs with different eligibility criteria, standards provisions, and other requirements. It is the committee's intent that States administer all Federal funds used for child care under a single set of rules and requirements, regardless of the Federal source of these funds. The committee expects that this provision will result in more efficient State administration of child care services and will facilitate the establishment of a "seamless" delivery system, so that families are not faced with disruption in their child care arrangements due to changes in economic circumstances or participation in other programs (i.e., welfare, job training, educational programs).

SECTION 3

The committee has conveyed its view that child care is a critical component in the success of welfare reform and that the Federal Government has a responsibility to provide funding and leadership with respect to child care. Nothing in this section should be construed to indicate or suggest the committee's view on entitlement or other mandatory funding mechanisms for the CCDBG.

V. COST ESTIMATE

U.S. CONGRESS,
CONGRESSIONAL BUDGET OFFICE,
Washington, DC, June 1, 1995.

Hon. NANCY LANDON KASSEBAUM,
Chairman, Committee on Labor and Human Resources, U.S. Senate, Washington, DC.

DEAR MADAM CHAIRMAN: The Congressional Budget Office has reviewed S. 850, the Child Care and Development Block Grant Amendments of 1995, as ordered reported by the Senate Committee on Labor and Human Resources on May 26, 1995.

CBO estimates that enactment of S. 850 would not affect direct spending or receipts. Therefore, pay-as-you-go procedures would not apply to the bill.

If you wish further details on this estimate, we will be pleased to provide them. The CBO staff contact is Dorothy Rosenbaum.

Sincerely,

JAMES L. BLUM

<sup>1</sup> The 1995 figure is the amount actually appropriated for that fiscal year.

Note: Details may not add to totals due to rounding.

The costs of this bill fall within budget function 600.

6. Base of estimate: S. 850 reauthorizes the Child Care and Development Block Grant at $1 billion in 1996 and such sums as may be necessary through 2000. CBO estimates the authorization in years after 1996 under two scenarios. Under the first scenario, the stated amount for 1996 is adjusted for projected inflation. Under the second scenario, the projected authorization level is equal to the stated amount for 1996. Estimated outlays assume full appropriation of amounts authorized.

In recent fiscal years, including 1995, the appropriation for the Child Care and Development Block Grant has stipulated that funds shall not be available for obligation until the last day of the fiscal year. Thus, CBO's budget projections for this program assume that outlays from 1995 and prior years' budget authority will be delayed. This estimate, however, assumes that the obligation delay will not continue in fiscal years after 1995. Therefore, outlays in 1996 through 1998 are estimated to be higher than they would be if the appropriators continued the obligation delay.

The bill would also repeal the State Dependent Care Development Grants Act and the Child Development Associate Scholarship Assistance Act. Because the current authorization of appropriations for these two programs ends after 1995, CBO does not estimate any change in the level authorized to be appropriated for these programs.

Section 2(1) of the bill would require that all programs providing child care services and using federal funds meet the requirements, standards, and criteria of the Child Care and Development Block Grant. Because CBO has no basis for interpreting what child care services would be affected, we do not estimate any effect on the federal budget. However, if the language were interpreted broadly, a wide variety of programs could be affected, including the Child and Adult Care Food Program, where children from families with incomes above 100 percent median state family income are served. Committee staff indicate that the committee report will make clear that a narrow interpretation is intended.

7. Pay-as-you-go considerations: If section 2(1) were interpreted broadly, direct spending could be affected by the bill. Otherwise, pay-as-you-go procedures would not apply.

8. Estimated cost to State and local governments: The bill limits administrative costs to five percent of the amount of payments under the block grant. To the extent that a state spends a higher percentage on administration, the state would have to either lower its administrative costs or spend more state funds.

9. Estimate comparison: None.

10. Previous CBO estimate: None.

11. Estimate prepared by: Dorothy Rosenbaum.

12. Estimate approved by: Paul N. Van de Water, Assistant Director for Budget Analysis.

VI. REGULATORY IMPACT STATEMENT

The committee has determined that there will be minimal increases in the regulatory burden imposed by this bill.

VII. SECTION-BY-SECTION ANALYSIS

Section 1 establishes the short title of the act to be the "Child Care and Development Block Grant Amendments Act of 1995."

Section 2 contains amendments to the Child Care and Development Block Grant Act of 1990.

Section 2(a) amends section 658B of the act to authorize appropriations as follows: $1 billion for fiscal year 1996, and such sums as may be necessary for each of fiscal years 1997-2000.

Section 2(b) amends section 658D(b) of the act to allow the State lead agency to administer financial assistance received under the act through other "governmental or nongovernmental" agencies (instead of other "State" agencies); to require that "sufficient time and Statewide distribution of the notice" be given of the public hearing on development of the State plan; and strikes language on issues that may be considered during consultation with local governments on development of the State plan.

Section 2(c)(1) amends section 758E(b) of the Act to require that State plans cover a 2-year period, instead of 3 years for the initial plan and 2 years for subsequent plans.

Section 2(c)(2) amends section 658(c) of the act to strike an outdated provision; to replace the requirement that providers not subject to licensing or regulation be registered with the State with a requirement that the State implement mechanisms to ensure proper payment to providers; to require the Secretary to develop minimum standards for Indian tribes and tribal organizations receiving assistance under the act, in lieu of State or local licensing or regulatory requirements; to strike subparagraphs (H) and (I) related to reduction in standards and reviews of State licensing and regulatory requirements; and to reserve 15 percent of each State's allotment for activities to improve quality of child care, a reduction from the 25 percent for both quality improvement and before- and after-school child care services contained in the 1990 law.

Section 2(c)(2) also amends section 658(c) of the act to add new language that places a 5 percent limit on State use of funds for administrative costs.

Section 2(d)(1) amends section 658E(c)(5) of the act to require that the sliding fee scale developed by the State "ensures a representative distribution of funding among the working poor and recipients of Federal welfare assistance."

Section 2(d)(2) amends section 658P(4)(B) of the act to change the definition of "eligible child" to one whose family income does not exceed 100 percent of the State median, increased from 75 percent.

Section 2(e) amends section 658(G) of the act to require States to use their quality improvement set-aside for resource and referral activities, including "providing comprehensive consumer education to parents and the public, referrals that honor parental choice, and activities designed to improve the quality and availability of child care," and for one or more "other activities," which include those listed in the current section 658G, plus activities to increase the availability of before- and after-school care, infant care, and child care between the hours of 5 p.m. and 8 a.m.

Section 2(e) also adds new language to section 658G of the act that will prohibit States from discriminating against providers that wish voluntarily to participate in resource and referral systems, that are operating legally within the State but that are exempt from State licensing requirements.

Section 2(f) repeals section 658H of the act related to early childhood development before- and after-school services.

Section 2(g) amends section 658I(b)(2)(A) of the act to strike the requirement that the Secretary withhold further payments to a State, in case of a finding of noncompliance, until the noncompliance is corrected. Instead, the amendment authorizes the Secretary, in such cases, to impose additional program requirements on the State, require that the State reimburse the Secretary for any improperly spent funds, or deduct from the administrative portion of the State's subsequent allotment an amount equal to or less than the misspent funds, or a combination of such options. The amendment also strikes sections 658I(b)(2)(B) and (C) related to additional sanctions and notice of such additional sanctions.

Section 2(h) amends section 658K of the act to require States to submit reports every 2 years, rather than every year, with the first report due no later than December 31, 1996. The amendment also consolidates current requirements that States include information in these reports on the type of Federal child care and preschool programs serving children in the State, and requires States to describe the extent and manner to which resource and referral activities are being carried out by the State. The amendment strikes the current requirement for information on the type and number of child care programs, providers, caregivers, and support personnel in the State, and strikes the provision related to review findings of State licensing and regulatory requirements.

Section 2(i) amends section 658L of the act to require the Secretary to prepare and submit bi-annual reports, rather than annual, with the first report due no later than July 31, 1997; and replaces the reference to the House Education and Labor Committee with the House Economic and Educational Opportunities Committee.

Section 2(j) amends section 658O(c) of the act, related to payments for the benefit of Indian children, to add new provisions allowing the use of funds by Indian tribes or tribal organizations for construction or renovation of facilities, upon request by the tribe or tribal organization and subject to approval by the Secretary. Section 2(j) also amends section 658O(e) of the act to allow the Secretary to reallocate any funds provided to a tribe or tribal organization that are not required under the tribe or tribal organization's plan to other tribes or tribal organizations in proportion to the other tribes or tribal organizations original allotments in the period for which the allotment is made available.

Section 2(k)(1) amends section 658P(2) of the act to add the following as an allowable use of a child care certificate: "as a deposit for child care services if such a deposit is required of other children being cared for by the provider."

Section 2(k)(2) amends section 658P(5)(b) of the act to revise the definition of relative child care provider by adding great-grandchild and sibling (if the provider lives in a separate residence) to the list of eligible children—by striking the requirement that such providers be registered—and by requiring such providers to comply with any "applicable" requirements governing child care provided by a relative, instead of any "State" requirements governing such care.

Section 2(l) amends the act to create a new section 658T that requires States that use any Federal funds for child care services to ensure that such services meet the requirements, standards and criteria of the CCDBG and any regulations issued under the CCDBG. These funds must be administered through a uniform State plan and, to the maximum extent practicable, shall be transferred to the lead agency and integrated into the CCDBG program.

Section 3 sets forth 5 findings relative to the importance of child care in welfare reform and efforts to move parents toward self-sufficiency and establishes the sense of the Senate that "the Federal Government has a responsibility to provide funding and leadership with respect to child care."

Section 4(a) repeals the State Dependent Care Development Grants Act.

Section 4(b) repeals the Child Development Associate Scholarship Assistance Act.

Section 4(c) directs the Secretary of HHS, after consultation with the appropriate committees of Congress and the Director of the Office of Management and Budget, to prepare and submit to Congress, within 6 months after enactment of this act, a legislative proposal containing technical and conforming amendments that reflect the amendments and repeals made by this act.
